

Democrats Map Their Program For Short Term

Want Rapid Action in Congress on Beer And Farm Relief
ECONOMY IS ISSUE
Roosevelt Anxious to Avoid Special Session, Leaders are Told

Washington—(P)—A clearly defined legislative program, calling for over and over again to help balance the budget and for relief to farmers has been adopted by Democratic leaders for the brief December session of congress.

Plans for quick action on beer and farm relief were announced following conferences with President-elect Roosevelt in which it became known that he desires to avoid an extra session after he takes office March 4.

As represented by those who conferred with him, Mr. Roosevelt holds as most important the balancing of the budget. He hopes, they said, that revenue from legalized beer and a reduction in government expenditures will make additional taxes unnecessary. But should the treasury deficit continue to mount, Mr. Roosevelt was said to be ready to meet whatever new tax situation arises.

He was represented also as especially anxious for farm legislation. The Democratic plan is to put through as much legislation in line with the president-elect's ideas and the party's platform as possible to avoid a special session. Extra sessions generally have been viewed as unsatisfactory.

Shelve Debt Problem
Meanwhile, Democratic leaders viewed the foreign debt problem closed for the present as a result of their conferences with President Hoover and President-elect Roosevelt. Their stand against a review of the debts cleared the way, they said, for devotion of the brief three months session to domestic problems.

Informally yesterday the house ways and means committee decided to open hearings Dec. 7 on the revenue phase of the beer bill. Representative Rainey of Illinois, the Democratic leader, and Chairman Collier of the committee, who had conferred with the president-elect brought the committee together.

Collier estimated possible revenue from beer at $300,000,000 to $400,000,000 annually, and said he would have the revenue phase of the beer bill, Representative Rainey of Illinois, the Democratic leader, and Chairman Collier of the committee, who had conferred with the president-elect brought the committee together.

Hopes for Action
Speaker Garner, the vice president-elect, announced that the Democrats would seek early enactment of a farm relief bill and expressed the hope that it would be a "non-partisan measure."

Plans to push such a measure were made following conferences between Mr. Roosevelt, Garner, Rainey and Chairman Jones of the house agriculture committee and other Democratic legislators.

Rainey and Jones were designated to arrange drafting of a bill. Rainey said he would ask farm leaders to confer with him prior to the opening of congress and that hearings would begin during the first week after it assembles.

The basis of the measure will be the allotment plan. Rainey said, would provide at least $250,000,000 a year for the farmers.

Farmers' Program
While "farm relief" broadly encompasses legislation of benefit to agriculture it has come to represent within the last 10 years a program to control surplus production and make the tariff applicable to agriculture as well as to industry. It is regarded as entirely positive.

Tasks Halted As U. S. Gives Thanks Today

Troubles of Needy Side-tracked for Annual Thanksgiving Holiday

TURKEY KING FOR DAY
Churches Filled as People Express Thanks for Blessings

(By the Associated Press)
The nation picked out the bright spots of its experience and gave thanks today.

The American citizen—from the president down—paused in his ordinary routine and gathered about festive boards for the nation's holiday—Thanksgiving.

Even the less fortunate sought to forget adversity as the more prosperous, the cities, states and various organizations stocked depleted tables with food in poor homes, shelters and institutions.

President and Mrs. Hoover, like millions of others, sat down to a turkey dinner. Other high Washington officials shovled aside cares of state for a simple family gathering.

Newton Baker, chairman of welfare and relief mobilization, made the holiday an occasion to appeal for aid for the unfortunate and to remind the citizen that conditions now are mild compared to those surrounding the Pilgrim's Thanksgiving three centuries ago.

Churches were crowded as the religious gave thanks to their deity for blessings of the past year. Thanksgiving also was greeted with noisy cheers as thousands gathered in stadia to see the curtain drop on the football season.

Washington—(P)—Rain with a dash of snow was on today's menu with turkey and football east of the Mississippi river. A disturbance moved eastward from Ontario and threatened almost general precipitation over the Atlantic states, lower lake region, the Ohio valley and Tennessee.

The snow was predicted only as "flurries" in New York, West Virginia, Ohio and western Pennsylvania. "Rain or snow" was seen for the west portions of Maryland and Virginia.

Dropping the cares of high office President Hoover today joined Mrs. Hoover in a restful observance of Thanksgiving.

After attendance at the Foundry Methodist Episcopal church on Sixteenth street, a simple American dinner, topped by turkey, awaited them at the White House.

The afternoon was reserved for one of rest for Mr. Hoover who had asked the nation to observe the day—in the words of George Washington—with "grateful hearts the many signal favors of Almighty God."

Other figures in official Washington mostly followed suit, either here or in other cities.

Life Prison Sentence For Oklahoma Doctor
Oklahoma City—(P)—Life imprisonment for murder today confronted Dr. Richard E. Thacker, 60-year-old former army physician, convicted of causing the death of Ruth Hall by a criminal operation.

The 12 men on the jury, eight of them farmers, deliberated a little more than an hour last night, taking only four ballots.

Miss Hall, telephone company employee, died last April 15 after being treated by Dr. Thacker, who testified she came to him after an abortion had been attempted.

Dr. Thacker also is accused of murder in the death of Robbie Lou Thompson, telegraph company employee, whose sweetheart, Marvin Erdman, testified against Thacker, as did Frank Lee, former University of Oklahoma football player, and Francis Roach, whose wives died allegedly from criminal operations by Thacker.

4 "Hunger Marchers" Arrested at Capital
Washington—(P)—Four persons, three of them women, seeking money, food and shelter for "hunger marchers" coming to Washington, were arrested by police last night on a charge of soliciting without a permit.

Their arrests came as police prepared to prevent picketing today of the White by children who, acting under the auspices of the Young Pioneers of America, a Communist organization, and the National Committee of Unemployed Councils, planned to stage a protest against "child misery."

News Agent Among Five Heirs of Big Estate in England

Sausalito, Calif. —(P)— Thomas A. Lawrence, a ferryboat news agent, expressed no surprise when notified dispatches from Winnipeg, Canada, listed him as one of five asserted heirs to the $40,000,000 estate of the defunct earl of Oxford and Mortimer in England.

"Yes, I know," he said. "We have been trying for about 10 years to do something about this."

Lawrence, elderly and married, said he was the grandson of the Honorable Sarah Harley, daughter of the fifth earl who, he stated, married a gamekeeper and lived in a modest lodge with her husband on her father's estate.

He said his cousin, Captain Samuel Lawrence, formerly of the Northwest Mounted police, had searched for years "through the little churches of England in hope of finding the marriage certificate of the earl's daughter and the gamekeeper."

"He" has even been to Gretna Green, Lawrence added. "I have not heard from him for about two years. Perhaps the certificate has been found."

Farmer Captured After Holding Off Officers 6 Hours
Taken by Ruse After Wounding One in Siege Of Kentucky House

Ross, Ky.—(P)—A fightin' 72-year-old farmer who barricaded his home and drove off six county officers though they battled him with machine guns and tear gas bombs for more than six hours, finally was captured last night by a ruse.

One officer was wounded and another man was hurt before the embattled farmer, Fred Heinzelmeier, was made a prisoner.

It was the lure of business that finally delivered the aged man into the hands of the law. Trying to prevent a killing, a neighbor, John Leopold, approached the house while the officers retired from the scene.

Leopold inquired whether Heinzelmeier would sell him some corn. Cautiously the old farmer unfastened a shutter and peered out.

"I reckon I might if them police are gone," he replied.

"Oh, I saw them going down the road," assured Leopold. "Were they looking for you?"

"They've been shootin' at me all day," said Heinzelmeier, "but I guess they've given up now."

Then accompanying Leopold, Heinzelmeier walked to the corn crib behind his home where three officers pounced upon him from the darkness.

Six hours earlier, Heinzelmeier, refusing to submit to arrest, barricaded himself in his big stone house atop a hill near here and prepared for a battle of indefinite duration.

He sent a charge of buckshot at William Straus, an officer who attempted to enter a rear door. Straus retired promptly, painfully but not seriously wounded.

Then Ed Morscher, a neighbor, approached the house to appeal to Heinzelmeier to surrender. A volley of shot sent him scampering to cover, and falling as he ran he suffered a dislocated shoulder.

By that time the battle was raging. Machine gun bullets by the hundreds were rained upon and into the house. Enough tear gas bombs were hurled through windows to have put a small army to weeping. Yet Heinzelmeier held out.

British Debt Payment Will Bring Problem

Difference in Exchange Rate Affects Both America and England

MIGHT HIT MARKET
U. S. Selling Movement Would Tend to Depress Value of Pound

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—Great Britain may pay her 20,000,000 pounds sterling on Dec. 15 in sterling. This is the extent of the concessions granted to Europe after President Hoover and President-elect Roosevelt, as well as the Republican and Democratic members of congress, had conferred over a way out of the debt problem.

The British, however, will be obliged to guarantee that the 20,000,000 pounds sterling will be worth $95,000,000, when the American government decides to make the necessary transfers. To put it another way, the British at the present rate of exchange, namely, with the pound selling at the lowest point in many years, would have a supply about 30,000,000 pounds sterling in order to meet the $95,000,000 gold payment.

From the British viewpoint 30,000,000 pounds sterling is a 50 per cent increase over the payment that is due and this means also that with the scarcity of gold, difficulties in getting the necessary exchange are encountered.

The United States government has no desire to embarrass the British government at this time. So President Hoover believes the American government would be willing to accept pounds sterling for payment provided the London government guarantees that it will at the first opportunity either furnish the necessary pounds to make up the difference in exchange or else accept the present payment of 20,000,000 pounds sterling in exchange for $95,000,000 in gold at some later date.

The whole transaction presents an unusual problem for the American government because if the 20,000,000 pounds sterling are converted into dollars, it would mean a 50 per cent increase in the value of the pound.

8 Gangsters are Freed For Lack of Evidence

Chicago—(P)—Things have been pretty tough for gangsters and racketeers in Chicago lately, but at least eight men known to police as the elite of gangdom had something to be thankful for today. They were "back on the bricks."

"Lack of evidence" was the key that opened the jail doors for them last night after a three-week visit behind the bars. The men were charged with conspiracy to collect campaign funds to influence an election unlawfully and suspected of conducting a city wide racket with building contractors as victims.

The eight are William "Three Finger Jack" White, Murray Humphries, Charles Fischetti, Marcus "Studdy" Looney, William "Klon-dike" O'Donnell, Paddy Sullivan, William Barlin and Samuel Alex. They were arrested in a sumptuous furnished suite in a loop building shortly before the general election.

Berlin—(P)—President von Hindenburg today withdrew his offer of the German chancellorship to Adolf Hitler, who would not organize a supporting majority in the Reichstag, and turned to consideration of another candidate.

Various Reasons Cited For Thanksgiving Days
Washington—(P)—While Thanksgiving usually is thought of as a day for all things, big and small, American presidents have proclaimed it for very specific reasons.

In the words of Washington, Madison, Lincoln and Wilson thanks were given for years of crises safely passed. In the brevity of Grant, the stately sentences of Rutherford B. Hayes, the pithy passages of Theodore Roosevelt, years of prosperity were gratefully reckoned.

This year President Hoover incorporated George Washington's proclamation in his own. Washington issued two, the first, quoted by Mr. Hoover, celebrating in 1789 the adoption of the constitution and in 1785 the benefits enjoyed under it.

Madison, who had seen his White House and his capitol burned by the British in September, 1814, didn't wait until the next November rolled around to be appreciative of peace, but proclaimed: "Thanksgiving day on Thursday, Jan. 12, 1815, celebrating the Dec. 24, 1814, treaty of Ghent."

U. S. Waits for Debtor Nations to Take Next Steps on Obligations

France and Britain Expected to Pay Installments Due
ADDED ACTION SEEN
England Expected to Send Additional Data to America

London—(P)—Unofficial comment reflected today the opinion that Great Britain will pay the American war debt installment due next month, but authoritative spokesmen said further facts would be presented to Washington.

The latter source said the British government would immediately lay before the United States ample facts, which, from the British point of view, would justify an extension of the Hoover moratorium.

This was in response to President Hoover's assertion that "no facts have been presented by the debtor government which would justify" suspension of the $95,500,000 due Dec. 15.

The morning papers commented at length on the Hoover pronouncement. The gist was Great Britain will pay, but that in such a case there will be dislocation of international trade and economic machinery in which the United States will not be the least sufferer.

The Times said the most serious effect of payment would be "the consequences to the Lausanne settlement and the proposed world economic conference, whose prospect for definite and substantial success is largely dependent on satisfactory settlement of the whole involved question of these inter-governmental debts."

The Telegraph said the question of payment next month cannot be closed, and saw a virtual invitation in part of Mr. Hoover's statement to renew the request made in the British note asking extension of the Hoover moratorium.

FRANCE READY TO PAY
Paris—(P)—France appeared ready today to make the December payment in war debt interest to the United States if Great Britain met her obligation in Washington on that date, but parliamentary complications were brewing.

Premier Edouard Herriot was represented as prepared to stake the fate of his government in parliament on the point. He failed to attend a meeting of the parliamentary foreign affairs committee yesterday, and the committee postponed discussion of the debt issue. This was taken as a sign of confidence.

But Deputy Franklin Bouillon, for example, expressed astonishment that the committee had taken no action, declaring the question was now a parliamentary one in France as well as Great Britain.

Newspapers said they had learned a big majority of the chamber was opposed to payment of the December interest. Some deputies were insistent that the premier take no decisive step without a parliamentary mandate.

Youthful Slayer Ponders His Fate

Chicago—(P)—"Bert" Arnold, confessed hammer-slayer of his aged step-grandmother, Mrs. Ellen Saxe, today admitted he didn't know what punishment he deserved for killing grandmother.

The 16-year-old boy, declared legally sane by state alienists, told reporters he had "been doing a lot of thinking since Friday night," the time he killed his 60-year-old relative because she refused him permission to use her automobile.

"I've tried for two days to arrive at proper conclusions as to what should be done in my case," said "Bert." "I don't know what to say. Crime, however, should always be approached from a psychological standpoint."

In the cell above "Bert," is locker James (Iggy) Varcha, 17, former inmate of an institution for mental defectives, who confessed, police said, killing one man during a robbery and a series of other crimes. Both today ate chicken, sweet potatoes and cranberries along with other prisoners at the Thanksgiving holiday meal but it was a glum Thanksgiving for the boys.

Attorneys for each have indicated they would enter insanity cases for the youths. Varcha yesterday heard his murder case continued until Dec. 7 to give his attorneys more time. The state expects tomorrow to seek indictment of "Bert" on a murder charge. A coroner's jury already has held him responsible for the slaying.

Notorious Bank Robber Is Slain By Negro's Rifle

George Birdwell, Member Of "Pretty Boy" Floyd's Band, Is Victim

Boley, Okla.—(P)—The state's long hunt for George Birdwell, described by officers as the "brains and killer" of Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd's bank robbing band, was ended today. Birdwell's body, pierced with bullets from a Negro bookkeeper's rifle, lay in a morgue at Okemah.

The lieutenant of the elusive Floyd was one of three men killed in a furious gunfight which followed an attempt to rob the Farmers and Merchants bank in this all-Negro town of 800 yesterday. Floyd did not take part in the raid. But after Birdwell's identity was established, C. A. Burns, of the state bureau of criminal investigation, predicted:

"Without him, Floyd's days will be few in the land."

Birdwell was shot down by H. C. McCormick after the outlaw had fatally wounded D. J. Turner, bank president.

A Negro companion of Birdwell was killed and the third robber, C. C. Patterson, a white man, wounded dangerously as they tried to escape gunfire from the weapons of vigilantes. The Negro was identified as Charles "Pete" Glass.

Birdwell's body was identified positively by officers from the Seminole oil district, where he formerly worked. A sister of Glass also identified the body. She said Birdwell and Glass were drinking Tuesday night and Glass boasted he would show Birdwell how a Negro robbed a bank.

The bank president was killed after he had set off a robbery alarm.

"Did you pull that alarm?" the robber identified as Birdwell demanded of Turner.

Turner admitted he had. Declaring "I'll kill you for that," the robber fired and the banker dropped mortally wounded. He died on the way to an Okemah hospital.

Then McCormick opened fire from the bank vault into which he had slipped as the robber trio entered. Townsman and the community's peace officers gathered immediately and their bullets stopped the attempt of Glass and Patterson to escape by automobile.

Hoover's Proposal Expected to Be Beaten In Congress

EUROPE GETS REPLY
Stimson Gives Answer To Belgium, France And Britain

Washington—(P)—Despite President Hoover's advocacy of creating an agency to re-examine the war debts, indications today were that his government would do nothing, leaving the next step in the troubled situation to its foreign debtors.

Not only did Mr. Hoover's proposal meet with strong and apparently conclusive opposition by congressional leaders, but this opposition was backed up by a statement from President-elect Roosevelt that he believed existing diplomatic channels were adequate to hear new pleas from Europe.

Such an expression from the head of the incoming national administration, even though not intended as a citation to congress, was interpreted here effectively closing the door for the present to an American-initiated wholesale review of the $11,000,000,000 in obligations due this country.

While this situation was developing, Secretary Stimson handed to British, French and Belgian ambassadors the formal replies of this government denying their requests for an extension of the moratorium.

His action followed President Hoover's lengthy statement issued yesterday afternoon, which said "no facts have been presented by the debtor governments which would justify" postponement of the Dec. 15 payments of nearly $125,000,000. Mr. Roosevelt had full knowledge of this verdict before departing for Warm Springs, Ga.

Then while sharp congressional disagreement to creating an agency to exchange views with foreign governments was building itself in Washington, the president-elect enroute southward in a statement of his own said "I firmly believe in the principle that an individual debtor nation should at all times have access to the creditor," and that the creditor "always should give courteous, sympathetic and thoughtful consideration."

To this he added: "My view is that the most convenient and effective contacts can be made through the existing agencies and constituted channels of diplomatic intercourse."

Thus, while not closing the door to the future reconsideration of the debts, he placed his influence against Mr. Hoover's suggestion of a commission. With it, he reiterated that responsibility for dealing with the war debt situation rests until March 4 with the present Republican administration.

That the commission project was foredoomed seemed certain in the light of the congressional opposition which was expressed immediately upon Mr. Hoover's statement, and in the words of Speaker Garner:

Opposed by Congress
"We convinced him (the president) that the congress at the present time would decline to create any agency to discuss debts with foreign debtors."

Attention was given here to indications from London, however, that Mr. Hoover's views were interpreted there as leaving the way open for new arguments for a review of the debt problem and that therefore the British government would present facts of this nature to the United States immediately.

Mr. Hoover did receive approval from among those who sat in the extraordinary debt parlays, for his suggestion that in some instances payments in foreign currencies rather than dollars be accepted temporarily. Because of the general economic unsettlement on both sides, the president said, payment in dollars in instances might not be possible "without losses on both sides."

$56,000 Spent For Operation Of Sanatorium

Revenues Exceed Expenditures Last Year by $200

Operating costs of the Riverview sanatorium, located on the Fox river at Little Chute, for the year ending June 30, 1932, were $55,189.20, according to the annual report of that institution presented by the asylum trustees and officers. Revenues for the year totaled $56,322.67, leaving a net balance of $203.47.

Trustees of the asylum are: F. J. Harwood, president; R. E. Nelson, vice president; and F. D. Zocholl. Dr. C. D. Boyd is superintendent and medical director; Dr. A. A. Playte is consultant, and Miss Bridget Boyle is matron.

Income for the year was received as follows: from the state, $33,376.75; from the county, $28,022.24; and from other sources, $4,922.68. Expenditures were divided as follows: care of patients, $4,572.06; maintenance, $4,062.72; and management, $6,405.51. The report shows that the per capita cost for the year was reduced from $18.02 to $16.91.

Weekly chest examinations are conducted at the sanatorium, according to the report of Dr. Boyd, and during the year there were 144 persons examined. There were 53 tuberculosis tests made as a result of these examinations and eight persons were found to be infected.

A total of 124 patients were cared for during the year, of which 66 were in the sanatorium on July 1, 1931, and 58 were received during the year. There were 61 discharges during the year, 46 living and 15 caused by deaths, leaving 63 patients in the institution on June 30, 1932.

Of these patients, 17.7 per cent or 22 were under 14 years of age; 54.9 per cent or 34 were over 35 years of age. Eighty of the patients were single, 35 were married, and eight were widowed.

The classification of these patients as to occupation follows: students, 36; housewives, 21; domestics, 14; laborers, 13; farmers, seven; salesmen, six; nurses, five; stenographers, 4; chemists, two; engineers, 2; and one each, stone cutter, carpenter, sales manager, music teacher, printer, bookkeeper, truck driver, housekeeper, bank clerk, dry cleaner, telephone operator, electrician and teacher.

Democrats Plan Victory Dinner

Broughton, Hughes Accept Invitations to Address Meeting Here

C. E. Broughton, Democratic national committeeman, and James F. Hughes, DePere, congressman-elect from the eighth district, have accepted the invitation of the Outagamie county Democratic committee to attend a Democratic victory dinner and program here on Tuesday, Dec. 6. The event first was planned on Thursday, Dec. 1, but due to the fact that a victory program is being held by Democrats the same night at Kenosha, the Outagamie-co event was postponed.

In addition to Mr. Broughton and Mr. Hughes the committee has invited Mayor A. C. Schmedeman of Madison, governor-elect, and F. Ryan Duffy, Fond du Lac, United States senator-elect. Invitations also have been extended to Democrats of nearby counties to join with Outagamie-co in its celebration.

Arrangements for the event here are being made by Stephen D. Ballet, chairman, and John W. Roach, secretary, of the county committee. About 400 tickets are to be distributed to prominent Democrats. The keynote is being distributed through the members of the county precinct committee. Every district in the county is expected to be represented at the meeting.

After the program of speeches and entertainment Mr. Ballet will propose organization of young Democrats of the county into a permanent organization.

Mursell Author of New Psychology Book

A new book by Dr. James L. Mursell, professor of education at Lawrence college, entitled "The Psychology of Secondary School Teaching" (W. W. North and Co.) has been published. It is intended for use in any educational psychology course where students are preparing for secondary school teaching, and embodies the aims formulated in the Commonwealth Teachers' Training Study and other recent sources.

Professor Mursell is a widely known educator and author, his works including "Principles of Musical Education" and with Mabelle Glenn, "Psychology of School Music Teaching."

The volume, equipped with full bibliography and questions at the ends of chapters, is "functional" and purposive in conception rather than mechanistic and while applying scientific standards and conduct, also makes a study of ways to improve the teaching in five general fields, English use, reading, attitudes and appreciations, problematic thinking, and memory.

Lay Emergency Plans in Event Of Milk Strike

Committee Decides to Effect Permanent Organization Here

The emergency committee, named by the Outagamie-co unit of the Wisconsin Cooperative Milk Pool, to plan for the distribution of milk in Appleton in case the pool members start their planned milk strike, met Wednesday afternoon at the Zuelke-bldg to discuss a plan of operation. Members of this committee are: George Beckley, Jr., H. H. Benton, W. M. Singler, E. O. Mueller and Edward Ziegler.

The committee decided it would be advisable to set up a permanent organization, known as the Producer-Consumer Milk company, which will operate in Appleton. After discussing this proposal at some length the committee decided to make a thorough investigation of the system as soon as possible.

Promises Cooperation
"The committee called on Mayor John W. Goodland, Jr., who gave them assurance that he would be ready to cooperate to the fullest extent in an emergency to see that the citizens of Appleton should receive an adequate supply of good, pure whole milk, should such condition as a strike arise," Mr. Singler said.

"The emergency committee does not want the consuming public to be denied of milk, but wants to receive milk at a lower cost than before, direct from the producer."

"The producers have no fault to find with the consuming public. They are willing to cooperate in every way if the consuming public will cooperate with the producers. The committee requested that the consuming public cooperate fully with the producers and thereby bring the desired results in the shortest possible time."

"Distribution centers are being planned throughout the city, so that the people who desire to buy cheaper milk at that time can come and get it in bulk quantities at about one half of the bottled price. The people should understand that during this crisis the manipulators of the market prices of milk and dairy products will attempt to keep the farmers from selling their milk by lowering their prices immediately to meet the farmers' prices. Should the consuming public go back to the bottled deliveries or the milk company deliveries, they will be defeating the very purpose of any action the producers may take and will only necessitate its arising later on. If they will stick with the producers it will result in permanent good in the vast trade areas of Appleton."

"This same procedure is being followed out in every principal city in Wisconsin and their territories that might be affected, should a general crisis arise."

Problem Faced On British Debt

ed immediately to gold in the exchange market they would bring $85,000,000 but such a selling movement would undoubtedly tend to depress further the price of the pound. Under the circumstances the treasury here would probably hold the 20,000,000 pounds sterling for some favorable time at which the exchange could be made and then the British government would make up the differential.

Works 2 Ways

This is not a new concession. It has worked the other way around. Thus foreign governments are permitted to pay their war debts to the United States in Liberty bonds or other government securities. They could, for instance, have purchased some of the 3 per cent bonds when they were selling in 80's and these securities would have been accepted at par, namely 100 cents, if held for the Dec. 15 payments.

The British do not have sufficient gold accumulated here to pay the Dec. 15 installment and at the same time take care of their normal needs for gold exchange. So what the American government is about to do by accepting a pound sterling which is guaranteed to be worth $4.85 whenever the United States ultimately demands that they be cashed in, to adjust itself to conditions that are unfavorable at the moment for London but which in the run will not prove to be any financial loss to America on this particular payment.

If the United States did not make the concession which President Hoover has proclaimed, it would mean that the British by paying 30,000,000 pounds sterling instead of 20,000,000 would be paying a premium which, at normal rates of exchange, would amount to approximately $48,600,000.

Should the pound sterling ever be stabilized at $3.20 it would not affect the present transaction, because in accepting 20,000,000 pounds sterling for the Dec. 15 payment, the British government must guar-

Reno Gambling Houses Lack Former Activity

Reno, Nev. —(P)— Gambling palaces that a year ago roared with the full boom of the game are all but deserted in Reno, divorce-center.

Then Reno was whooping it up with an abandon reminiscent of the old west and gambling houses were getting a tremendous play. Stakes were fairly large; profits of the proprietors huge.

Today, a quarter is considered pretty much a man-sized bet. Few, if any, of the palaces of chance are said to be showing a profit. Several have closed. In others that have been noisy 12 months ago with cries of excited, milling throngs, tables stand deserted, chairs are empty and the click of a roulette wheel sounds strangely loud.

Dealers who formerly got $15 a day and worked seven days a week now work on a staggered basis and are lucky to get $7.50 a day. Even boosters no longer shout come-on tags to the "suckers," in from the Pacific coast for a thrill.

The novelty of Reno worn off, free-spending visitors disappeared and the "shills," or house men, followed.

Best indication of the decline that has set in are figures in the county recorder's office. They show that gambling license collections in Washoe-co (Reno) are running approximately $30,000 behind those of a year ago, and that most of the licenses issued have been for slot machines of the nickel and dime variety.

Collections for the last quarter of 1932, due Oct. 1, totalled only $10,035, the lowest for any quarter since gambling was legalized in March, 1931. Previously the county had collected as high as $27,315 in a single month.

With approximately $10,000,000 local money tied up in three closed banks, sporting interests hardly look for a recovery before next summer, and even then they expect nothing resembling the boom days of last year.

Meantime, so-called "big shot" gamblers sit around and play solitaire.

Kinsman Believes Col. Robins 'Really Victim of Amnesia'

"No Reason for Him to Want to Disappear," Brother-in-Law Says

New York. —(P)—Edward Dreier, a brother-in-law of Col. Raymond Robins, said in an interview with the Brooklyn Eagle Wednesday that he believed the prohibition leader "really was suffering from amnesia" during the months he spent in the North Carolina mountains under an assumed name.

"There was no reason for Colonel Robins to want to disappear," he said. "His home life was very happy and he was very successful in his work. He was much interested in the presidential campaign and had planned to work actively for President Hoover."

"I am sure he did not grow a beard and don overalls as a disguise. Remember that 30 years ago Colonel Robins was a prospector in Alaska and at that time wore a beard. Since he went back to prospecting when he lost his identity, it was only natural that he should revert to that mode of dress."

Dreier said that shortly before Colonel Robins dropped from sight in September he had toured 286 cities on behalf of prohibition and that the strain in connection with that campaign "might have had something to do with the lapse."

The brother-in-law also told the Eagle that previous to the finding of Colonel Robins last Friday the family had received several letters purporting to be from kidnap rings and demanding ransom for the release of the prohibition leader.

"One of the letters," Dreier said, "was mailed from a city in Pennsylvania and demanded $50,000. Federal agents are investigating and if the sender is found, appropriate action will be taken."

He said Colonel Robins would remain in Asheville, N. C., where he was taken after having been found in the nearby mountain village of Whittier, until his health is completely restored.

Dinner Time in Roosevelt Home

Informal Affair

President-Elect Enjoys Telling Stories During Meals

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of six articles on President-Elect Franklin D. Roosevelt, revealing little incidents in his everyday life, his traits of character, his philosophies and interests.)

BY WALTER T. BROWN
(Associated Press Staff Writer Who Accompanied Roosevelt On His Campaign)

Albany, N. Y. —(P)—Meals in the household of President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt are "formal" by designation, but in reality they are most "informal."

Mr. Roosevelt for years has breakfasted in bed. He has two reasons for this. One is because he enjoys it; the other is because he can read and dictate letters, and even on occasions receive visitors while eating.

When in Albany and at the state luncheon at his desk. Frequently he has a guest or two and they dine with him off the improvised table.

The evening meal in the Roosevelt household always has been supper, never dinner. Seldom are there only members of the family at this meal. Mrs. Roosevelt says she never knows if there are to be "five or fifty for supper." But regardless of the number, or their places in society, there soon is an easy, free flow of conversation.

Mr. Roosevelt sits at one end of the table, Mrs. Roosevelt at the other. If conversation lags one or the other always has a joke or an anecdote to relate.

The children have their places in the dinner scheme. An animated discussion between Mr. Roosevelt and Fanny Hurst, the writer, over Russia one evening was followed by 18-year-old John telling of a new horse on the farm at Hyde Park.

Frequently when the family gathers at Krum Elbow, with the President-Elect's mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, the children narrate escapades of modern day youth, intending to shock their grandmother. This appeals to Mr. Roosevelt and he often joins in.

His grandchildren are favorites with the President-Elect. He takes an interest in the play and accomplishments of Anna Eleanor, 5, and Curtis Roosevelt Dall, 2, and Sarah Delano Roosevelt, 8 months old.

The editorial staff, under the direction of Everett Kircher, is engaged in the sorting of individual pictures. Group pictures are being taken at this time under the direction of Richard Davis.

The contracts for printing, covers, and engraving have been awarded to local concerns.

700 Persons Sign Plea For Pardon of Woman

Madison —(P)—A petition signed by 700 Columbia-co residents asking Governor LaFollette to pardon Mrs. Rose E. Pope convicted on charges of assault to commit murder was presented to the governor Wednesday by Henry Gunderson of Portage, her attorney.

Mrs. Pope and Philip Polster were sentenced to 20 year terms in May, 1929, for conspiring to kill the woman's husband, John Pope, Lakeview farmer, to get him out of the way. The petition for pardon declared that Mrs. Pope had been influenced in the crime by a stronger person and had been sufficiently punished.

Inoculations Will Prevent Spread of Diphtheria In County

A total of 7,078 rural school pupils have been inoculated with toxin anti-toxin to prevent diphtheria, according to the annual report of Miss Marie Klein, county nurse.

The number of children inoculated in each district is as follows: Black Creek, 289; Bovina, 120; Buchanan, 183; Center, 304; Cicero, 261; Dale, 195; Deer Creek, 445; Ellington, 229; Freedom, 208; Grand Chute, 273; Greenville, 242; Horton, 45; Kaukauna, 152; Liberty, 69; Maine, 159; Maple Creek, 58; Oneida, 355; Osborn, still to be treated; Seymour, 305; Little Chute 544; Combined Locks, 136; Shiocton, 179; Hortonville, 213; Kimberly, 170.

The funds for this treatment are furnished by the Outagamie-co board and the inoculating work is done by the Outagamie Medical society.

Besides the 37 toxin anti-toxin clinics, Miss Klein made 284 school visits at which 270 talks were given on various health subjects. Special inspection was given to 886 children in schools. Gofre prevention tablets are being distributed to the children of all schools with 5,894 now reported as taking the tablets.

Miss Klein made 655 home calls during the year, 42 regarding infants; 50 for pre-school children; 216 for school children; and 347 for adults. Miss Klein held 102 group meetings and classes, giving instruction in home care of the sick and 3,014 people attended these meetings.

4-H Clubs Showing Interest in Work

An indication that county 4-H clubs are finding their annual programs and projects interesting and are doing more work than ever before, is contained in the requests of many boys and girls clubs for record books for the coming year.

New members are being recruited for all the clubs and the Sunny Nook club at Cicero has been seeking for information on sewing projects. Activities of the clubs are directed out of the county agricultural agent's office by Gustav A. Sell and Miss Harriet Thompson.

See Increase in Tags Sold to Deer Hunters

More than 100 more deer tags have been sold to Outagamie-co hunters this fall than two years ago, according to John E. Hantschel county clerk. Two years ago there were about 1,300 tags sold while this year the number is more than 1,400 tags.

Find More Cooperation Between Farmers, Hunters

A cooperative spirit, especially apparent this fall, and created through efforts of Outagamie-co Fish and Game Protective association, is enabling rabbit and squirrel hunters to invade ground which heretofore has been inaccessible due to misunderstandings between farmers and hunters. It is reported.

Appleton nimrods are finding that many farmers in counties adjoining Outagamie are especially happy to aid hunters as long as nimrods obey certain rules, most of which are governed by ordinary sportsmanship.

Farmers also report that hunters are more courteous and less troublesome this year, although a few are still somewhat over-bearing. Most farmers, according to officials of the game association, are happy to permit hunters to hunt on their land as long as they ask permission.

Farmers ask that nimrods drive into their yards, ask permission, and refrain from breaking down fences or leaving gates open. One farmer reported that in other years he was obliged to chase his cows over other farms because negligent hunters left gates open or broke fences. Others reported that hunters shot chickens, ducks and other fowl.

They found, however, that most of these sports were committed by vandals and not sportsmen who know better, association officials say.

Give Thanks in Deeds, Club Told

Country Leads in Wealth Industry, Health, Says The Rev. Blum

Basing his address on the text "Let Us be Thankful That We Are Thankful," the Rev. G. B. Blum told the Appleton Kiwanis club at the weekly luncheon at Conway hotel Wednesday noon that although the country may be in the doldrums due to nation-wide depression, its citizens still have much to be grateful for.

Delivering the annual Thanksgiving day sermon for the club, the speaker said citizens of this wealthy United States should give thanks in service and deeds and not in evaporating words.

They should give thanks for peace health and their homes, he said. He pointed to the many people confined to hospitals with terrible disease and pain wracked bodies, and to the asylums where thousands of insane live in eternal darkness.

Americans should be thankful because their country leads in minerals, wealth, industry, progress and health, he declared. We should all be thankful that we have peace, personal, national and international, he said.

Rural Groups Gather Here Next Friday

Discuss Plans for Participation in Home Talent Play Program

A meeting of representatives of rural organizations of Outagamie county will be held at the courthouse Friday afternoon, according to Gustav A. Sell, county agricultural agent, who is making the plans.

The meeting is being held, Mr. Sell said, to discuss the results of a recent district meeting at Shawano, and to plan for the county's participation in a district home talent play festival.

At Shawano, farm organizations discussed plans for making their programs more interesting and making their groups more effective in the community. Many of the suggestions made at this conference have since been carried out, Mr. Sell said.

Eight counties are included in the district home talent play festival, Mr. Sell said, and there are nine more counties that may join the district later. Those already in the district are: Winnebago, Waushara, Waupaca, Manitowish, Marathon, Oneida and Outagamie. Outagamie county organizations have not before participated in the home talent play activities and the group Friday will discuss the possibility of doing so.

A. F. Willenden, of the rural sociology department of the state college of agriculture, will be a speaker at the meeting Friday.

Hit and Run Driver Sought After Crash

Worden Potter, 62, Appleton, Killed When Struck By Vampire Car

County and city officials today were seeking the driver of the car that struck and killed Worden Potter, 62, 1430 W. Prospect-ave, early this morning on Highway 10 just west of the city limits and then fled. Potter's body was discovered by Inez Ulrich, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ulrich, near whose home the accident happened.

Both city police and county authorities were notified. Sergeant John Duval and Officer Lester Van Roy, undersheriff Edward Lutz and Assistant District Attorney Oscar J. Schmieg responded. The body was taken to the Hah Undertaking parlors.

Apparently, according to Mr. Schmieg's investigation, Potter was struck and killed about 5 o'clock this morning by a car going toward Appleton. At about that hour, according to Mr. Ulrich, a woman's scream was heard from the road. A car was then heard to stop, only to start out rapidly a few minutes later. Beside the road was a small puddle of water, apparently from the radiator of the car that struck Potter. The front of a deer was found imbedded in Potter's left arm. At noon today Mr. Schmieg was still investigating the case, had not decided whether to call an inquest. Potter evidently was struck as he was walking beside the road and his body was hurled into the ditch. His skull was fractured and both arms were broken.

Potter's family said that he left home early Wednesday morning to go to Hortonville to seek work. They had not heard from him since. He apparently was on his way home when killed. Potter had a lunch in his pocket and he carried a cloth sack in which there was a live chicken.

Survivors are the widow; six children, Hilma, Helen, Violet, Raymond, Ellsworth and Melvin; three brothers, Otis of Reddick, Ray and Allen of Eau Claire. Mrs. Rane Rye, Eau Claire, formerly Mrs. Goodrich, Chicago, and Mrs. May Tibbs, Detroit, Mich.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed. Dewey, Jr., 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Hottenstein, 1352 W. Summer-st, was injured at 5:30 Wednesday afternoon when he was struck by an automobile driven by Raymond Kinney, 312 E. Main-st, Wausau, Wis., on his way to work.

The boy was taken to St. Elizabeth hospital where examination revealed concussion of the brain, but no skull fracture. The youngster also suffered bruises about the body. The boy was injured when he ran in front of the Kinney car in attempting to cross the road, witnesses said.

Prepare for Annual Christmas Seal Sale

The sale of penny tuberculosis Christmas seals in Kimberly this year will be directed by A. G. Briggs, in Bear Creek by K. E. Edge, and in Shiocton by Miss Marian Newton, according to an announcement made by the Wisconsin Anti-tuberculosis association, which conducts the annual sale of seals to raise funds to fight tuberculosis in Wisconsin.

There are approximately 13,000 active cases of tuberculosis in Wisconsin at this time, the association reports. "Last year 1,446 persons in this state died of tuberculosis. Fifty-six per cent of these were between the ages of 15 and 45."

"Persons who have tuberculosis must be found and properly treated at once. Healthy persons must be warned of the disease and taught how to avoid it. Children, above all, must be protected."

"Free chest clinics, at which approximately 16,000 are examined annually, are made possible through funds raised by the sale of anti-tuberculosis Christmas Seals. Public health nurses are trained, a preventive health program is carried on in Wisconsin schools, and the facts on disease prevention, treatment and cure of tuberculosis are disseminated through all kinds of publicity media."

"Tuberculosis hits heaviest when times are hardest," the W. A. T. A. doctors declare. "The fight must go on with renewed vigor. Christmas seals finance the fight."

Article Describes Teaching of Music

An article describing the system of teaching instrumental music to Appleton schoolchildren will appear in the January service bulletin of the Educational Music Bureau of Chicago. The article is written by the two men who developed the system, Prof. E. C. Moore, in charge of woodwind and brass work, and Jay I. Williams, director of strings. The course of study is designed to give the pupils something more than the rote work, "someday you'll play in a big orchestra." Requirements for each pupil for each type of instrument are established, and as soon as a set of work is completed the pupil plays before three judges. If he passes the test he is given a certificate and permitted to wear the insignia of that degree, and then passes on to the next set of work. Two degrees can be earned in one year.

Leads Kansas Wets

For the first time in the half-century that Kansas has been bone-dry anti-prohibitionists are holding public meetings. H. J. Tholen, mayor of Hays, Kan., is chief organizer and leader of the wets. The first meeting was held in Wichita, and was attended by prominent Kansans. The huge Roosevelt vote in Kansas has given the wet leaders hope that they can reverse a state policy which has become a national tradition.

Young Wanderers Constitute Big Federal Problem

Thousands Tread Highways of Nation in Search of Food and Work

Washington—(P)—Congress soon may be asked to help the ragged young fellow that trudges along the highway or sneaks a ride on a freight—a wandering boy out of a job.

Government officials, fixing the number at thousands in a rough count, say that never before have so many young men, hungry and ill-kempt, been subjected to the harsh and bruising contacts of life on the road.

Work for the wanderer is hard to get, they add. Communities have all they can do with their own needy. The coffee, bread and beans of charity are running low.

Convinced that this life of struggle cannot but leave a scar, the national capital's former chief of police—Brigadier General Pelham D. Glassford—plans to take the whole problem to congress and seek a federal appropriation.

"It is estimated that there are close to one million of these wandering men and boys now on the road," he said in consenting to head a movement for their relief.

"Fully 90 per cent of them are under 35. Some 200,000 are mere boys."

"These young men, most of them from respectable and substantial families, have been cast loose from their jobs and homes by the depression. . . . Right now they are swarming over the south, southwest and the Pacific coast. The individual states cannot afford to care for them from their own relief funds."

"Being forced to wander as they are they soon will become broken in health, or diseased, unemployed and in many cases criminal or degenerate."

Newton D. Baker not long ago warned America that "youth cannot wait for a return of better days."

The former secretary of war urged communities to provide for health, education, recreation and character building as well as emergency relief, asserting:

"The past has shown us that crime, ill health and loss of morale are expensive."

The children's bureau of the labor department, by suggesting ways of making home more attractive and "the road" less so, has undertaken a campaign to keep youths under 21 years from joining the vast hobo army.

High School Chorus Rehearses Cantata

Install Tear Gas in Postoffice Vaults

Tear gas apparatus is being installed in the two new vaults of Appleton post office building this week by W. A. Pitts of the Lake Erie Chemical Co. One of the vaults is to be equipped with new gas apparatus, and the other will be equipped with the equipment taken from the vault in the old postoffice building. The old apparatus will be improved with new fixtures.

Meeting Called For Discussion Of Tax Reform

Seek Program for Presentation to Next State Legislature

Representatives of every organization, including taxpayers associations, county boards, farm organizations, and commercial clubs, in Wisconsin have been invited to meet at Madison Friday morning, Dec. 16, to discuss and formulate a program of tax reform which will be presented to the next session of the Wisconsin legislature.

The meeting called by the Wisconsin Taxpayers Alliance, will be held on the 15th anniversary of the Boston Tea Party Day, the day when America's first recorded protest against excessive taxation was made.

The following statement from the offices of the Alliance tells of this meeting, as well as "TAXPAYERS WEEK," which will precede the gathering.

"The meeting has been called for Dec. 16th, so that every group in Wisconsin interested in tax reform may have an opportunity to participate in drafting uniform resolutions to present to the legislature."

"It is apparent that many bills affecting taxes will be offered to the legislature during the coming session. In order that the legislators may be informed as to the wishes of the taxpayers in the state, a digest of the opinions of the representative organizations will be prepared. This procedure should solidify the opinion on the various taxation measures which will be offered in the next legislature."

"Taxpayers' Week"

"The Alliance has requested taxpayers of Wisconsin to observe the week of Dec. 5 to 10 as 'TAXPAYERS WEEK.' Two hundred service clubs of the state will present programs dealing with problems of taxes and expenditures during that week. At the same time, newspapers have been requested to publish material which will assist taxpayers in a study of their many state and local problems."

Most of Wisconsin's $305 tax levying units will have completed their budgets by December 1. Local governments, for the most part, are endeavoring to balance greater demands for unemployment and poor relief by other budget reductions."

"Wisconsin counties find that they have little or no control over many expense items in the county budget. This situation arises through statutory regulations that certain levies must be made irrespective of the wishes of the members of the county board. Similarly, many cities find budget reductions difficult to make due to the levies which must be made for interest and annual installments on serial bond issues."

"Taxpayers' Week" and the Madison gathering on Boston Tea Party Day, will permit people to advise their representatives in the legislature of the state as to changes required to permit local officials to make reductions in the amounts at present fixed by state laws."

Insurgent Labor Men Barred From Conclave

Cincinnati, Ohio—(P)—Failing to "crash the gates" of the American Federation of Labor convention here, a band of 26 insurgent labor leaders headed today for their homes.

Led by Louis Weinstein of the Painters' Union of New York, the insurgents yesterday attempted to invade the federation convention hall but were turned back by locked doors and police.

Weinstein said his group wanted to demand federation support of "immediate" unemployment insurance, of a hunger march to Washington, recognition of the Soviet republic, and of plans to slash the salaries of federation officials.

Denied admittance to the convention hall, Weinstein said the group would "come back" again next year.

While that the proposed conference of farm representatives in Washington before Dec. 5 will find the American Farm Bureau federation holding out for the old equalization fee, the National Grange for the export debenture and the new school of thought pulling for the allotment plan promulgated by W. R. Ronald, editor of the Mitchell, S. C. Republican, and his associates.

It is conceded no group will oppose substitution of any one or all of the plans for the stabilization clause of the agricultural marketing act as administered by the Federal Farm board.

Under the allotment plan the department of agriculture would estimate the probable production of a surplus crop, the probable domestic consumption and production would be issued treasury certificates for the amount of the tariff per unit of measure allotted to them individually as their share of the domestic production. Thus, if a farmer were accus-

the existing channels of diplomacy. This statement, which marked the culmination of his active, two-day consideration of the war obligations, was regarded by persons close to him as a declaration against the creation of a debt commission to deal with debtor nations.

The statement, issued last night shortly before he arrived in Lynchburg, Va., on his way to a vacation in Warm Springs, Ga., reiterated his previously outlined position that the question of dealing with the Dec. 15 payments is to President Hoover and the seventy-second congress to deal with.

The president-elect said the individual debtor should at all times have access to the creditor to put facts before the latter and that the creditor should always give thoughtful and considerate consideration to these facts.

He said he agreed with President Hoover on the four principles that the debts were actual loans made with the intention that they should be repaid, that the debts were to be considered individually, that the settlements should take into consideration the capacity of the debtor nations to pay and that reparations had no relations to debts.

Many Reasons for Thanksgiving Days

has brought to us the accustomed season at which a religious people celebrate, with praise and Thanksgiving, the enduring mercy of almighty God.

Most presidents concentrated on what the nation should be thankful for, but Grover Cleveland, centering on how to spend the day, put in this human touch: "And let there also be, on the day thus set apart, a reunion of families, sanctified and cleansed by tender memories and associations; and let the social intercourse of friends, with pleasant reminiscence, renew the ties of affection and strengthen the bonds of kindly feeling."

Harrison, McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft gave thanks for an expanding America. Wilson's phrases were poignant of a world at war, and in 1918 he waited until after the Nov. 11 armistice to say in Thanksgiving: "A new day shines about us. Justice shall replace force and jealous intrigue among the nations."

Both Harding and Coolidge spoke almost with awe, of abundance of prosperity. President-Elect Roosevelt, already in practice at proclaiming as governor of New York, this year asked his people to pray: "Remember in pity such as are this day destitute, homeless, or forgotten of their fellow men."

Gelosi Hearing Is Adjourned to Nov. 30

Elmira, N. Y.—(P)—Hearing to take depositions of witnesses in the case of John Gelosi, awaiting trial in Madison, Wis., as accessory in the slaying there last July 5 of Andrew Presti, was adjourned Wednesday until Nov. 30 by Otis H. Gardner.

Gardner was appointed commissioner to take the testimony of Elmira witnesses by Justice S. H. Schein of the Dane-co Superior court, Wisconsin.

District Attorney Fred Risser and Defense Attorney Darrell MacIntyre of Dane-co have been here for several days checking evidence in the case.

Gelosi, who lived here three years, is charged by the state of Wisconsin with hiring two men on a visit there last July to kill Presti.

Must Dispose of Huge Fund Within Quarter Century

Rosenwald Foundation Somewhat Resembles "Brewster's Millions"

Chicago—(P)—Something of a modern paraphrase on "Brewster's Millions" is taking place in Chicago. Trustees of a $10,000,000 gift of the late Julius Rosenwald are attempting to obey orders and spend it within 25 years.

The hero of the play was to inherit millions more if he spent one million within a year and had nothing to show for it.

Custodians of the Rosenwald legacy must invest the millions at their disposal in charity. When the money is spent their reward will be in having carried out the wishes of the internationally famous philanthropist.

Mr. Rosenwald directed organization of the Rosenwald Foundation, as it is known, and laid down a specific course for it in his will. The principal as well as the income. Among other things he instructed must be spent. He died about a year ago.

Edwin R. Embree, president of the foundation, said Mr. Rosenwald's orders were carried out so well the first year that $1,500,000 was spent. It will be necessary to curtail activities next year if the fund is to last over anything like the period suggested.

For the present economic situation has reduced the fund from the now instead of a value of $8,500,000 it probably is worth not more than five or six millions, he estimated. As a result only about $500,000 will be spent next year, he said.

Mr. Rosenwald created the fund through a gift of 200,000 shares of Sears, Roebuck and Company stock. There remain 150,000 shares, Embree said.

"It seems like suicide to dissipate the stock at prevailing low prices," he declared. "Temporary non-payment of dividends on the stock also has reduced our income."

The far flung benevolences undertaken by the foundation disregard racial or religious lines. Last year a million dollars went for Negro welfare, one of Mr. Rosenwald's chief charities.

In Chicago money was spent on Negro educational and health programs. In the south it took the form of education solely and funds were supplied for the building of 5,500 exclusively Negro schools in every southern state.

But the fund is applied to many other interests. Besides modern housing projects for Chicago Negroes it has even taken an active part in a drive to improve methods of street cleaning.

"Through our work with the City Managers' association we have led to a study of efficient street cleaning methods," Embree said. "The plan adopted by us as the best is now being used in most American cities."

The responsibility of distributing these charity funds is in the hands of 11 trustees from all sections of the country. Besides Embree there are ten other officers, Michael M. Davis, medical director, and Alfred K. Stern, director for special activities.

Thanksgiving Day

IN 1621 the Pilgrim Fathers, notwithstanding their trials and hardships, appointed a day of thanksgiving . . . a day in which to thank a generous Providence for blessings bestowed upon them.

Through the years this custom has been continued. Today, every one of us should have something for which to be thankful. If only we have the respect of others, have made new friends, have health and happiness, we are fortunate.

Highway and School Funds To be Slashed

Necessitated by Decreased Gas Taxes and Income Revenue

Madison—A 20 per cent reduction in state highway aids to be paid to local government the first of next year and a 10 per cent cut in school aids will be made by the state emergency board as the result of decreased revenues from gas taxes, motor vehicle licenses and income taxes this year.

Formal announcement of how the cuts will be appointed was not forthcoming but Senator Thomas M. Duncan, executive secretary to Governor LaFollette said that the revenues have fallen off and that the reductions will have to be made.

The total of aids appropriated by the last legislature out of the proceeds of the 4 cent gas tax was about $13,000,000. A 20 per cent cut applied to this figure would mean a total reduction of $2,600,000 for all localities.

Another $600,000 to be pared from elementary schools aids by a 10 per cent cut would bring the total reduction to $3,200,000. The school aids, appropriated on the basis of $250 per teacher total about $5,500,000 for the present fiscal year. The income tax which finances these payments produced revenues far below normal this year.

The various state aids are certified to the cities, counties, towns and villages in December and are paid around the first of the year.

The League of Wisconsin Municipalities has sent out letters to all its member cities criticizing the state for not informing the localities that they would not receive all of their anticipated apportionments and for not conducting hearings.

Hearings Impossible
Senator Duncan said Wednesday, in reply, that it would be impossible for the emergency board to hold hearings because thousands of governmental units are affected by the cuts and could not be given individual consideration.

The secretary said that he is preparing a financial statement which will be made public soon. In making reductions the emergency board acts under authority given by the special session of the 1931 legislature to reduce appropriations up to 20 per cent.

The state's operating budget and its building and improvement expenditures already have been cut $3,850,000 for the biennium ending next July 1. If a total cut of $3,200,000 is made in state aid the aggregate reduction in legislative appropriations for the biennium will be $7,050,000.

The curtailments enforced this year rather definitely portend the kind of slashing in appropriations

Lawyers to Offer Free Legal Service to Poor

A system whereby indigent Appleton and Outagamie-co residents will be given free legal advice and service, has been inaugurated by the Outagamie County Bar association. The association has named a committee of three members to whom will be referred all cases uncovered by relief workers in which the participants are without funds to engage legal assistance. Such cases as garnishments, ejectments, mortgage foreclosures, etc., are among those that will be referred to this committee, which consists of J. A. Lonsdorf, H. H. Benton, and J. P. Frank. The latter is chairman. This committee will study each case, and if there is a legitimate defense it will appoint some attorney to handle the matter without cost. This free legal aid to indigent families is being offered by the lawyers.

SPINOZA'S 300TH ANNIVERSARY

Three hundred years ago today at Amsterdam, Holland, then the refuge of the persecuted, Baruch Spinoza was born into the little colony of Jewish emigrants that had fled the terrors prevailing in Spain for those whose opinions did not meet with the approval of the ruling classes.

In most places in the civilized world today some note is made of this anniversary because, though excommunicated by Jewry and derided by Christians, Spinoza did that rare thing for the age in which he lived,—he, like Voltaire, thought aloud and threw his feeble body against the effort, to stifle men from speaking honest thoughts.

The position he took meant great personal hardship, a sacrifice of the worldly advantages his keen mind might otherwise have brought him and the contumely that was so freely piled upon those who lived in advance of their day. In order to sustain life Spinoza became a lensmaker and ground and polished lenses for optical instruments, becoming recognized, in spite of his handicaps, as the most skillful optician of his day.

He never made money. He never sought to hold office or to lead. He never commanded an army division. On the other hand he lived in abject poverty and he wrote four books; and it is the thoughts he expressed in those books as well as the strict rigidity with which he adhered to his principles of life, refusing a chair at Heidelberg University with a comfortable salary as his fame and worth grew because satisfied that it would be impossible to maintain that complete freedom for the expression of his views that he coveted above life itself.

Like a great many early thinkers, even reaching back to a period before the birth of Christ, Spinoza sought to apply mathematical principles, a geometrical method to life. This geometrical form was about so much wasted effort but his major thesis lay in the purpose of convincing not only the people but rulers as well that "in a free commonwealth it should be lawful for every man to think what he will and to speak what he thinks." The mere printing of such a sentence in Spinoza's day meant attack, fierce and bitter attack, to the extent that his life was endangered by personal assaults at the hand not only of religious but political bigots.

Spinoza sought to support his thesis of free thinking and free speech by an investigation of the principles of scriptural interpretation although, such were his times, he did not dare to print some of his observations until he felt the cold hand of death approaching.

As we read these observations today they are not only clear but mild and temperate. The black hatred they aroused tends to give us a vision of man's inhumanity to man at that time as well as the profound progress that has been made in the intervening generations.

Like the true philosopher that he was Spinoza devoted many pages to a discussion of the unsatisfactory life that results when the aim is "pleasure or honors or riches." Of these particular ambitions he said:

"All of these arise from the love of what is perishable, such as the objects already mentioned, but love toward a thing eternal and infinite feeds the mind wholly with joy and is itself unmingled with any sadness. Wherefore, it is greatly to be desired and sought for with all our strength.

"Moreover, whatsoever in the sciences does not serve to promote our object will have to be rejected as useless."

Further in relation to his own feelings and attitude he wrote:

"After I had somewhat thought over the matter I found in the first place that by abandoning these objects (pleasures, honors and riches) and undertaking a new course of life I should abandon a good uncertain in its own nature for one not uncertain in its own nature (for it was a constant good I was in search of) but only as to the attainment of it. Further, I came by persevering reflection to see that by so doing if only I could thoroughly weigh the question I should abandon certain evils for a certain good.

"Now, all those things which the multitude pursue not only provide no remedy for the maintenance of our being but actually hinder it, and are oftentimes the occasion of ruin to such as possess them, always to such as are possessed by them.

"Happiness or unhappiness depends on the nature of the object whereon we fix our affections. Strife, envy, hatred and fear are the common penalty of loving perishable things. But love toward a thing infinite and eternal feeds the mind with pure joy and is wholly free from sorrow; this is to be greatly desired and strenuously to be sought for."

Spinoza concerned himself directly with the problem of man's place in nature. He wrote: "Nature's laws and ordinances whereby all things come to pass and change from one form to another are everywhere and always the same. There should, therefore, be one and the same method of understanding the nature of all things whatsoever, namely, through nature's universal laws and rules."

He saw freedom for man only through knowledge. He added as much as he could to that knowledge. He fought to keep open channels of knowledge.

To him the highest form of knowledge was intuition, "to see all things, not as a series of events in time, but in their necessary logical relation to God."

For perhaps a hundred years after his death little attention was paid to him or his philosophy. But writers and thinkers who came after him, and some of whom were fired by his words and particularly by the courage he evidenced in the dark era in which he lived, gave to him the glory he deserved. Among the latter were Lessing, Mendelssohn, Jacobi and Goethe.

Some indication of the emotional disturbances resulting from the life of a great thinker may be gained from the fact that those who disagreed with him called him "an utter atheist who deserved no attention," and those who believed with him denominated him "the God-intoxicated man."

Thus again is it demonstrated that the opinions of intimate friends and bitter enemies should never be permitted to form the final judgment of a man or his works.

The great fact remains that Spinoza, unflinchingly and fearlessly, bore aloft a flaming torch, not to ignite the cruel fires that destroyed human flesh but for the purpose of throwing light into the farthest recesses where only those with the highest degree of courage dared to throw it, to the end that humanity might crawl out of the black pit of intolerance and despair in which it then floundered.

EMPLOYMENT AT THANKSGIVING

We notice a generally happy note of optimism running through all articles concerning employment because, since August 1st, the upward trend of available jobs, though at times it has ascended painfully and always but gradually, has nevertheless as certainly been marked.

There was a bit of slowdown, though not of lost ground, in this trend during September that is readily ascribable to expected political changes, and yet by October, and when the country adjusted itself to the certainty of Mr. Hoover's approaching defeat and became gradually satisfied, too, that the nation would be quite safe under Mr. Roosevelt, and even might be happier, employment started to swing up again.

Statistics published by the Federal Labor department showed an employment gain of 3.8 per cent for September, which cannot be accounted for by the mere process of staggering, because there was a gain of 2.6 per cent in payrolls over the previous month. This upward trend has been persistent through October. There is fair evidence to believe that more than a million men, as claimed by the President, have been put on the payrolls since August 1st.

The New York State Industrial Commissioner who keeps close tab upon the labor market for the Empire state and is reputed "a stern realist" reported for the month ending September 15th a return to employment of nearly three times "normal seasonal improvement for that period."

Of course, the country realizes the prime necessity of adhering with strict fidelity to the natural program that has tended to produce this result. Everyone hopes the present congress will refrain when it meets in December from again threatening the country with some of the measures which, last spring, succeeded in covering us with a greater degree of despair than most of those living can remember. Probably the nation will have to listen to the sobs of many a swan-song as those who are being ushered out of legislative authority warn the country of the dangers faced when they no longer stand on guard. The country can stand any number of these "I-view-with-alarm" better than it could the legislative efforts of many of the speakers. But improving conditions always furnish the best treatment for unsound measures because they make apparent the need of few measures at all.

Australian wheat growers during the fiscal year 1931-32 received the largest bounty of the industries of that country.

German per capita consumption of meat for the first half of 1932 was only fractionally lower than during the same period last year.

There were 5,272 wholesale establishments in Michigan in 1929 with net sales in excess of $2,172,000,000.

A news-reel motion picture house, opened in Brussels, is the first theatre of this kind in Belgium.

Ohio ranks fifth in the United States in the number of airplane pilots, with 1,072.

There are 257 licensed glider pilots in the United States.

Per capita lumber consumption in Tennessee in 1930 was 195 feet.

Forty-five per cent of Tennessee's lumber production in 1930 was oak.

WELL, well, well and well . . . here it is Thanksgiving day and you're about to be filled or have been filled with a Thanksgiving dinner which was or is about three times more than you ever eat . . . just why is it that the great American idea of celebration is to eat too much or (and) drink too much and finish up feeling verta punk? . . . it shouldn't be called Thanksgiving, it's really the day of the big stomachache . . . the day when everyone feels too stuffed with food to be thankful for anything, except, perhaps, the chance to catch some sleep . . . wonder how flattered the Pilgrim fathers would be to know that the country they helped open up is celebrating their achievements by overeating? . . .

The original manuscript of Sir Walter Scott's "Guy Mannering" on exhibit in New York, has been stolen. But shucks, why didn't the thief grab off a nice printed volume? If Scott's penmanship was like that of most writers, the villain won't be able to read it anyway.

Dear Jonah:

Maybe clothes do make the man, but anyway, I am sending you some pictures of Franklin D., and I hope you can sleep nights now, for I think they prove he has at least two suits.

If he doesn't do any better than Prexy Hoover, though, he will probably have to get you and some of the boys to take up a collection to get him some clothes before his term expires.

Keep up the good work, you are actually funny sometimes.

The world gets worse and worse. In a current issue of one magazine, we discovered the following excerpts, taken from three different pages; . . . the island was . . . an absolute hell" . . . "this hell-roaring refuge . . . hell hounds . . ."

Maybe there was some more brimstone, but the whole business began to smell so sulphurous that we got tired of looking it over.

Try a long walk both before and after dinner today, it may help. Unless you happen to carve the turkey. In which event, you'll get enough exercise.

Just Folks

THANKSGIVING

For the moment how the head
And let a simple grace be said.
For the moment let depart
All the burdens of the heart,
All the doubts and all the fear,
All the losses of the year,
While our thanks to God we give
For His blessings while we live.

For the moment he at rest,
Let all rancor leave the breast;
Let all bitter thoughts be stilled.
Just before the plates are filled
Let us pause and thank the Lord
For the loved ones round the board;
For the days enriched by friends
And His care which never ends.

For the moment let's forget
All the disappointments met,
And remember still 'tis sweet
At the family hearth to meet;
Still 'tis good to gather round
Where the truest joys are found.
In that spirit let us say
Just a simple grace today.

INSULT STOCK IN POLITICS

When the Insult stocks "went down a point, one-sixth of the families in Cook county sighed with regret at the reduced value of their property." That—from a sentence in one installment of the series recently published in the News, on the rise and fall of Samuel Insull—expresses the faith put in his business genius by his home city, Chicago, at the peak of his amazing career. And it poignantly expresses the spread of the disaster which since has engulfed the former "Insull Empire."

The view herein is that the full Insull story should be kept in mind as public attention now tends to focus on the man himself. An old and humiliated man, broken in health, may be brought under arrest from his retreat in Greece and faced at Chicago with charges of mismanagement. If his complex structure was tottering, the rule that personal justice take its course right has a large place—but other large public considerations need not meanwhile be minimized.

The activity of the Insull interests in politics, known for years, is shown to have included inside opportunity for numerous politicians and persons having political power to acquire Insull stocks at inviting prices. Party lines were ignored. Tantamount to bribes, the favors were distributed on both sides of the political fences. Investors should be warned against promotions depending too much on political power. The feasibility of strengthening laws to prevent such alliances between business and politics becomes urgent.

A still larger matter arises. How big is too big in big business? The Presidential campaign stressed "decentralization," and in business it appears to be a growing conviction fortified by the Insull case that both efficiency and soundness are risked when too many large business units are grouped. The theory is gaining headway that the managements of each such unit should carry its financial responsibility. Good reasons seem to justify the prominence of the reaction against bigness as such. One argument is that return to a greater number of financially independent enterprises offers a somewhat larger spread of employment.—Detroit News.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author

THE PREVENTION OF

ADENOIDS

In our discussion of the Rational Conception of Adenoids the other day we nearly put one over on the censor. Remember? We advised giving plenty of pure RAW milk to infants and children for the prevention of adenoids and one thing and another, and we were trying to sell a little CERTIFIED milk when the censor started out of his doze and rang the bell.

Today let's get started here at the beginning. It has been practically proved, particularly in England, that infants and school children who receive RAW milk have better health and better teeth and better development of jaws and nasal passages and hence less trouble from adenoids and enlarged tonsils, than do infants and children who receive only pasteurized or otherwise processed heated or cooked or sterilized milk.

CERTIFIED milk is the only raw milk that is universally pure and safe for infant, child or invalid. Ordinary market milk may be free from pollution, but it is so frequently infected with the germs of tuberculosis, septic sore throat, undulant fever, etc., that some kind of disinfection is necessary for safety, and most communities adopt ordinances providing that all non-sterilized milk offered for sale shall be pasteurized, boiled or pasteurized to kill the disease germs that are likely to be in it. Pasteurizing means simply heating milk up to 145 degrees F., holding it at that temperature for 20 minutes, then allowing it to cool again. That is enough heat to kill off tubercle bacilli, typhoid bacilli, streptococci, etc. In many small villages or country towns it is possible to buy, perhaps from a neighbor who keeps a cow, if you can't keep one or a goat yourself, perfectly clean, pure, safe, raw fresh milk, and where this is possible it is boon to the children in any family.

I believe the prevention of adenoids and enlarged tonsils is largely if not entirely a question of nutrition, and that the same nutritive requirements as those laid down for the development and conservation of the teeth insure also the prevention of overgrowth or hypertrophy of adenoid tissue. (If you don't know how to conserve the teeth, send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask how.)

The influence of the vitamin, or whatever it is in fresh RAW milk that favors the normal development of teeth and jaws, is promoted by the influence of plenty of sunlight on the naked skin. At all times, therefore, nakedness or nudism must be regarded as healthful for infants and children. The fashion of bare knees or bare legs or bare feet is commendable. The scantiness of attire which so greatly shocks us older fogies, is likewise commendable from the viewpoint of health. Even in mid-winter it is healthful to go without clothing or without this or that superfluous garment, if one finds it comfortable to do so. The mid-winter sunshine or skyskine is comparatively poor in ultraviolet, but still it is beneficial if it can get to the skin.

In my opinion—just one of my notions—a suitable iodine ration tends to prevent adenoid hypertrophy. The infant should get his iodine ration in his food or from his mother's breast. The school child or pre-school child should get it from food and, in regions where soil and water and hence food are poor in iodine, from the iodized salt that should be used exclusively in households in such regions. The older child may require a weekly dose of a drop of tincture of iodine in a glass of water, during most of the school year.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Sugar

Very fond of sugar, and every one says it's bad for me and they mumble something about kidneys. Swimming is my chief exercise. I am 23 and would like to know . . . (D. N.)

Answer—Any child or youth who plays hard or gets plenty of exercise, such as swimming, may take sugar in any form quite freely with benefit. It is only the mollycoddles, the work dodgers, the sport fans and the older who just sit or ride or have hysterics at the game or in the grandstand who must beware of indulging the craving for sugar. Sugar, either refined cane or beet sugar or any natural sugar, is the best of foods where there is any sudden demand for muscular effort and endurance.

Cross Eye

Three year old son tends to cross left eye. A doctor said he will grow out of it. Giving him eye exercises several times daily. Will this cure him? (R. M.)

Answer—Unable to form opinion on data given. If the "doctor" is an eye physician of good standing the treatment may be correct. Nowadays one never knows what a layman may not call "doctor."

Raw Liver

Chances of getting tape worm, meat poisoning or other affliction from eating uncooked liver obtained from the ordinary butcher shop? (E. L.)

Answer—Beef or calf liver, if clean in the cut, is safe. Reject any liver that shows any little spots, bladders, measles or unusual appearance in the fresh slice.

The Tinymites

By Hal Cochran

THE melon soon was sowed in two and happy Windy shouted, "Ooooh! I guess we'd better saw some more, to make the pieces small."

"It's much too much for anyone to eat a half. 'I would be no fun. I want about a quarter of a half, and that is all."

"That's really quite a large piece, lad, but if you'll eat it I'll be glad," exclaimed the friendly farmer. "Go ahead and saw some more."

"There are few melons left this year. In fact, I only have two here. We may as well just eat them up, 'cause that is what they're for."

My, what a feast the Tinymites had. Scouty said, "Gee, it is sad that we can't eat up all there is, but I fear we'd get sick."

"The portion that I had was good, and I ate all I really could. Before we started I was hungry. Now I'm feeling sick."

Then Duncy had a crazy plan. To all the rest he cried, "I can show you a clever stunt. Come, Scouty, you lend me a hand."

"We'll use a piece of melon rind to teeter-totter. 'Twill be fine." This interested Scouty and he said "I think that's grand."

A very large slice soon was found. They promptly set it on the ground. Then Duncy said, "Who'll go on first? It's pretty far to climb." The farmer said, "I'll help this treat by putting each one in a seat. Now do not try to rush me. Both you lads have lots of time."

A smile spread on brave Scouty's face as he was lifted into place. Then Duncy, too, was lifted up. "All right," the farmer cried. "Go and teeter to and fro. Lean forward, lads. Away you'll go." Then soon picked up momentum and it was a dandy ride.

Seen And Heard
In New York

BY WILLIAM GAINES

New York — Children get lost in New York just like needles in a haystack.

They get separated from their mamas for a moment and the surge of humanity sweeps them still farther apart. Or the kids get frightened in strange places and run in the opposite direction. Then the wailing begins, with children and parents out of earshot of each other.

Sympathetic persons flock about the lost child. At some other point would-be helpers flutter around the screaming mother. The situation at both ends seems very complicated and almost hopeless for awhile. But it seldom is that bad.

Usually some level-headed individual thinks to call a policeman to take care of the child. The officer takes the straying to the precinct station. And sooner or later the excited mother is guided there by some other calm adviser.

If the child is not called for at the police station by 9 p. m. the law requires that he be turned over to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. In 1931, out of all the thousands of children who strayed or were temporarily misplaced, only 218 were delivered to the society. In five years the total reached only 958. Of these only one was left in the society's hands, unidentified.

Some of the larger stores have receiving stations for lost youngsters. And there are quarters for their accommodation at the summer beaches, so crowded in the summer.

March Madness
When Fredric March, the current cinema rave, was playing stock under his real name of Frederick Bickel he had a season in a company in Dayton, Ohio. Milt Caniff, the artist, was an actor in those days and happened to be a member of the Dayton stock company. He tells this way.

Bickel had some words with the manager of the outfit and handed his notice to the woman who owned the company. The play that week was "Madame X." Bickel said little about the quarrel through the week, but on the last night of the play, with his trunks packed and his pay in his pocket, he spoke his mind plainly.

The woman owned 'was playing Madame X, and in the scene when Bickel, playing the young attorney defending his mother in a murder trial, stood to sum up the case he let loose.

He punctuated the impassioned plea for mercy with poison darts at the woman herself, who sat agast in the prisoner's box. She couldn't think quickly enough to control the situation, and the panic was on. The cast was convulsed (knowing the feud between the two.) The audience, too, was agast at first, but soon got the drift, as Bickel's aides called their attention to her well known Shynlock tactics.

Zoo Adopts Pets
Persons who find they had better get rid of unusual pets frequently delivered them to the Zoological park in the Bronx, where they are well cared for under the direction of Curator Raymond L. Ditmars.

Those who contribute animals or reptiles receive an imposing card of acknowledgement, prettily engraved and ornamented. Lots of people frame these cards, Dr. Ditmars says.

Barbs

Now Helen Madison, the swimming champ, has signed up with the movies. One-piece suits never bothered her sense of modesty, but what will happen to it when they hand her a movie-style evening gown?

A clubwoman says that mosquitoes have made petting parties impossible in New Jersey. The petting party becomes a slapping party in New Jersey.

Beer may be on the way back, but that still leaves us wondering if the brewers are going to bring back the old-fashioned brewery horses.

A Berlin author says American women are so beautiful they can appear to advantage in any old thing. Wonder what effect that will have on the local second-hand business.

The election leaves a lingering doubt that only time can erase. Just how did those Ford employees vote?

Experiments in London with a house that is toppled by an airplane landing lead to interesting expectations of friend husbands' happy landings after a night with a sick friend.

And when beer comes back, there'll be the problem of unemployed crocks.

Now is the time for all good men to spend their Christmas savings.

Thank you . . .

for the splendid Thanksgiving business you gave us.

We trust you are as happy with our goods as we are with your good will.

Public Must Outlaw War, Speaker Says

Opinion Should Mold Peace, Mrs. Hooper Tells Rotarians

Menasha—There is no such thing as sanity and war in a country at the same time, Mrs. Benjamin Hooper of Oshkosh said at a joint meeting of Menasha and Neenah Rotarians and Rotary Anns in Hotel Menasha Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Hooper was present at the opening of the world disarmament conference at Geneva last year and spoke here Wednesday on the "responsibility of public opinion to the success of world disarmament."

Recalling that the World War was said to be a "war to end war" she said little has been done since to prevent its recurrence. It is about time, she pointed out, for public opinion to make it impossible for any country to start a war.

The speaker listed some of the acute dealing inventions that have been developed since the World war, including gas, chemicals and toxins, and contended that the world is sitting on a power magazine and that if another world conflict ever starts our civilization will be destroyed.

Blames Government Peoples never start wars, it is always the governments, and that who start the conflicts never fight them, she stated. Stressing the importance of success at the Geneva conference, she told of the petitions presented at the world meeting, containing millions of signatures, and said that "if we don't clean things up, our children and grandchildren must pay with their lives."

Referring to the depression, she pointed out that it is impossible to blow up all the money in the world and have it too, and explained that whatever happens anywhere in the world affects America. Asserting that "we cannot afford war here or anywhere else," she listed statistics showing that the last war cost the United States $1,000,000 an hour for more than two years and that it's total cost for all nations was $180,000,000,000. Three fourths of our national income is spent for past, present and future wars.

"If we believe our civilization is worth saving we should do something about it," she said. Mrs. Hooper said that the "only hope in the world is that public opinion gets behind the Geneva conference and that disarmament of the whole world is necessary to bring back business and to get the money to run government. If the conference fails it means war, world war, she stated.

She discussed both France and Japan, and told of visits to Belleau wood and attendance at the world council on the Sino-Japanese question. France and Japan are not to forget the white crosses and seeks only security. Referring to Japan she scored the militarists in control of the government, but pointed out that there may be good or bad governments but that the people are the same the world over. She lauded the stand taken by the American state department in refusing to recognize land taken by war.

Mrs. Hooper urged that public opinion be exerted in getting the United States into the world court, and said that if everyone does his part the senate will take favorable action.

Advocates Bill She also advocated support of a proposed bill prohibiting the country, as a neutral nation, from selling arms and munitions or loaning money to nations who are at war in violation of the Pact of Paris.

If all countries reduce armaments, they all will feel secure, but, she said, there is no advantage to cancellation of war debts without world disarmament.

She closed with an appeal for support by Rotary International, which was organized to promote understanding among business men this world over. She also appealed to mothers and said:

"If we don't stand for and tell the world what we want, whatever comes is on our souls."

The speaker was introduced by H. L. Gear, president of the Menasha Rotary club.

Board to Outline Highway Plans for 1933 at Meeting

Special Session of Winnebago-co Supervisors Set for Friday

Neenah—The Winnebago-co highway committee program for 1933, which, in its present form, recommends the paving of state trunk highway 125 from Menasha toward Appleton, will be discussed at a special order of business by the board of supervisors Friday morning.

The Highway 125 project, which does not involve funds raised by county taxes, but which is to draw its entire expense from the state aid funds probably will be the principle center of debate. The board went on record in July opposing construction any county trunk roads for one year.

D. F. Culbertson, state highway engineer, revealed that the state commission has practically decided that the route shall be relocated in the Town of Menasha. Henry Schwarzbauer, Town of Menasha, is opposed to the relocation, maintaining that the town cannot afford the $1,000 a mile assessment that would be levied against it. E. G. Sonnenberg, Menasha, is also opposed to the plan, contending that the road would lead business away from the twin cities and into Appleton and also that there is no demand for paving that particular highway.

The purpose of relocating the highway, according to Culbertson, would be to eliminate four grade crossings. In response to a question, Culbertson said the state highway commission would not approve paving of the present route.

Funds from the sale of Christmas seals throughout the state are used to combat tuberculosis which caused 1,446 deaths in Wisconsin last year. Hundreds of free chest clinics, made possible through the seal sales, are held in the state each year to facilitate early discovery of tuberculosis.

Board to Decide On Agent's Office

Winnebago-co Farmers Fail to Reveal Definite Stand on Issue

Neenah—What to do with the office of county agent and the 4-H club program will be considered by the Winnebago-co board as a special order of business during the Monday morning session at Oshkosh.

O. P. Cuff, Winnebago-co agent, submitted annual report Tuesday afternoon at a special session of the board to which farmers were invited, and discussions following the report indicated that even the farmers in the county are undecided as to what should be done.

D. K. Allen, Oshkosh attorney, and Warren Miracle, prominent county farmer and Grange official, were among those who spoke in favor of retaining the office.

Conduct Thanksgiving Service at Shoitcon

Neenah—Special Thanksgiving services were held in St. Paul's English Lutheran church at 8:30 Thursday morning. "Reasons for Gratitude" was the subject of a sermon by the Rev. C. E. Fritz and the choir sang "The Earth is the Lord's" by Wooler.

Neenah—Col. F. J. Schneller of Neenah was reelected a director of district number three of the Wisconsin state chamber of commerce at the organization's fourth annual conference in Milwaukee this week. J. L. Barchard, Milwaukee, was reelected state president.

Board May Drop Highway Projects

Supervisors to Consider Blanket Resolution at Friday Meeting

Neenah—A resolution providing that all highway construction, whether it be county or state projects, shall be eliminated in Winnebago-co during the coming year, will be considered by the board of supervisors Friday.

The resolution, submitted Thursday by L. W. Kezartee, would prevent the proposed relocation and paving of Highway 125 north of Menasha and members of the highway committee objected to the blanket resolution.

George Spore pointed out that the highway 125 project would be financed without a county tax levy and Henry Schultz, Neenah, maintained that the highway work would give employment to some men in the county inasmuch as the state always has permitted Winnebago-co to use its own machinery and men. He said that if employment was not provided, additional families would soon be on the poor list.

Ernst Radatz asserted that if the county does not take the state aid that is coming, the money will be loaned out to some other section of the state and the state will get the interest.

Neenah Society

Neenah—A meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, scheduled for Friday afternoon has been postponed. No date for the postponed session was announced.

THE STORY OF SUE

By Margery Hale

SALLY regained her composure in a minute. She tried to laugh—but the mirth was unsteady, tremulous.

"When I have a chance to show what I'm made of, do something brave, I can't take it," she said. "I'm sorry, I didn't mean to give way. I won't do it again, Joe."

The smile that she gave the young musician was gallant.

"But Sally, you can't stay here, you can't!" he began.

"Oh, yes I can. My own medicine won't hurt me. I did take a car that belonged to someone else, you know, and I was with that—that man when he died. I'll be all right. Goodbye!"

She turned, held her head proudly, and followed the matron down the corridor.

Joe Raynor took an involuntary step in Sally's direction. Then he paused. The steel gate had closed. He was barred. His eyes were hurt, baffled, puzzled. Sue noted it all. She slipped an arm through his.

"We'll get her out all right, Joe. Let's start to raise bail. Find out how much it will be while I call Jack."

Joe turned away, evidently relieved that he had something to do. Sue started to the telephone. Joan's white face stopped her.

"Sue, it was my fault! She heard me talking on the telephone—talking about her—and she thought no one cared! And I almost thought that I could marry Phil today! I got word to him, about all of this—Isn't it strange the way a few hours can upset plans—"

"Not upset them. Just delay them," Sue explained.

"I told Phil not to come. I did not let him know just what had happened. I said I'd explain when I saw him. He would have come at once, but I have to get control of myself—I sent Sally to jail because I talked about her over the phone!"

Joe's voice rose in a wall, sheer, piercing, and Sue looked around at him. Somebody would hear. She wished that she could think of something comforting to say.

"It's not your fault. You merely told the truth. It's the eyes—they made me do it," Sally was calling from down the corridor. They couldn't see her. There was something ghastly in the voice that came drifting.

"Sally! Sally!" Joan slipped away from Sue, reached the locked gate, and shook the bars. "Oh, Sally!"

"I'm all right. You can't see me. I'm in a room around the corner. Snap out of it, Joan. You didn't do anything!" Sally's voice came again, lower this time.

The matron came to the entrance.

"Let me spend the night with her. Please!" Joan begged. "It can't be so awful when two people are together. I want to go. Oh you must let me, you must!"

The matron shook her head. "It's against the rules. I'm sorry."

With relief Sue saw Dr. Raynor coming. He would quiet Joan. But he didn't notice Joan.

"It's all right. I've raised the money. I called one or two men I know. And she's going to get out now. I arranged it."

"Oh, that's glorious. Watch Joan while I call Jack," Sue started toward the telephone booth.

Gowns Retain Their Balance as Waistline is Lowered

BY JEAN PATOU

Paris—The field open to change in the various strategic points of a dress, following upon an alteration in the place of the waistline, is extremely vast.

The category of clothes where unquestionably any novelty in the mode is more freely expressed is that of evening dresses. Here the changes that have been worked on the new theme are more apparent.

I think that the most apparent changes that have occurred. This is only logical and motivated by the fact that the waist, or rather the belt, achieves a horizontal effect above the waist and all efforts heretofore had concentrated on achieving a very noticeable lengthening of the bust.

Old Artifices Abandoned

This season we are compelled to abandon completely all of the artifices used in preceding years to create the illusion of a longer bodice.

These were used, of course, when the waist was placed at its normal height or slightly above. With the new lowered waistline, this would result in giving the bodice too great an importance in relation to the length of the skirt.

Whenever I have launched an important novelty in the general lines of dress, I have always considered it necessary to tend all efforts towards maintaining the sense of harmony and endeavored to avoid inopportune or additional fantasy. The novelty of the theme seemed to me to be self-sufficient.

Equilibrium is Sought

The models that have been created according to my new idea show proof, I think, of perfect equilibrium, and observing of this naturally brought in its train the necessity of abandoning all bias lines or effects on bodices, which up to now were so successful in conveying a sense of length.

This season these lines are transferred to the skirt, where they have now become a necessary feature. Dress tops too are rarely asymmetrical, but on the contrary almost rectilinear.

This is, in my opinion, the characteristic "motif" of the new décolletés which, on the other hand, offer as always the variety of design we now expect. As a matter of fact, every possible effect can be dared today in décolletés, provided the lines are never in direct contact with the principle now ruling on account of the lowered waist. This means that the cut of a décolleté must strive to diminish rather than emphasize the length of the bodice.

Horizontal lines are now admitted, and while back décolletés are just as deep as preceding, still they do not extend lower than the natural waistline.

Decolletés should follow the principal theme of one's evening gown, according to Jean Patou. (Left) On a deep wine red evening gown of the new Velours Paysan, Patou cuts a horizontal strapping to the décolleté that tends to diminish the greater length of bodice brought about by the lowered waistline, which is the theme of his new collection. (Right) On a Bordeaux red evening gown with a very low back, Patou adds an extra brace around the top of the arm to give width to the shoulders.

Keep Bidding Down to Explore Possibilities

BY ELY CULBERTSON

A few people have taken one feature—an important one, it is true—of the Approach-Forcing system of bidding and sought to make it a golden calf before which contract players were expected to fall down and worship. Of course, I refer to the response of one in a suit to partner's opening bid.

In its essence, the so-called "One over one" convention has always been a part of the Approach-Forcing system of bidding. Generally speaking, the approach principle simply means that opening bids should be bids of one in order that the partnership may explore the possibilities of part-score, game or slam before it has embarked upon an impossible contract. As a matter of course, it follows that if one player opens with a bid of one in a suit and his partner responds with a bid of one in a higher ranking suit, if the opening bid is anything more than a mere minimum, —either the rebid of the opening suit, the bid of notrump, the showing of another suit, or support for partner's bid suit. This is sheer common sense and naturally is the foundation of any sound system of bidding.

However, the worst difficulty that some players have faced in connection with this entirely natural bid is the impression they have gained that, through the mere fact that partner responds to an opening bid of one in a suit with a bid of one in a higher ranking suit, in some mysterious manner, sleight of hand or what not, the deuces and treys have been converted into aces and kings. Of course, this is absurd. In actual practice, those who use the Culbertson system consider the responses of one in a higher ranking suit as a forcing bid 89 per cent of the time. This is so, because the proportion of opening bids made on absolute minimums is extremely small. It would be difficult for a player to deal out a hand containing a bedrock minimum bid that would not justify a further bid if partner showed signs of interest by responding with a bid of one in a higher ranking suit. By considering this bid as absolutely forcing, the fine inferences which can be drawn from the natural use of the bid disappear. Thus, having 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ or more honor-tricks, those who use the Approach-Forcing system will not merely bid one over partner's opening suit bid of one, but will make a forcing takeout, which indicates a strong probability of game and a hand of such strength that a round of bidding can well be sacrificed in order to convey more precise inferences. On the other hand, for instance, if the opening bid is one diamond, and the response to that bid is one heart, then the opening bidder can draw the precise inference that the responding hand does not hold 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ honor-tricks or he would make a forcing takeout.

The fact that such slight additional values as a five-card length in the suit or a queen above a minimum hand justify a rebid when partner has responded to a bid of one with a bid of one makes it unnecessary to make a forcing takeout on doubtful hands. Forcing bids are spectacular and interesting. They are valuable weapons when the hands are of such strength as to justify their use, but the forcing opening bid, the forcing takeout and forcing rebid have all been abused by players fearful of missing game.

The proper conception of bidding is that each bid, when the partnership has opened the bidding is a step forward. It may not be a step toward game or slam, but each bid and each response should more clearly disclose to both players whether the goal on that particular hand should be part-score, game or slam. As many rounds of bidding as possible should be conserved on doubtful hands, so that when the score is marked down, it will be on the plus and not the minus side of the sheet.

Mr. Culbertson will be glad to answer questions on bidding and play of hands sent in by readers. Address him in care of this newspaper. ENCLOSE A THREE-CENT STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE.

Your Birthday

"SAGITTARIUS"

If November 25th is the date of your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 5:30 a. m. to 6:30 p. m., from 6 p. m. to 7 p. m., from 7:30 p. m. to 11:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 2 p. m. to 3:15 p. m. and from 8:30 p. m. to 9:30 p. m.

Astrological influences on this date will stir up great emotional activity. Love, anger, hate, etc., probably will be apparent in their most extreme manifestations. Guard yourself against "flying off the handle" at the slightest provocation. Affairs of the heart embarked on this November 25th most probably will not fare well. He who is blessed with a strong will power and uses it to keep himself under control will receive the greatest returns on this day.

The child born on this November 25th will have a most impetuous nature. Without an iota of fear in his make-up the child will begin early to seek adventure and excitement, and most probably this desire for thrills will continue through life. The child will take great pleasure and delight in seeing new places and new people. So great will be his desire to travel that you may find him to be a very restless little one not at all interested in his studies. Remember in dealing with him that his keen power of observation is his best teacher.

Born on November 25th, you are probably a very high-strung person possessed of a very sensitive nature which at times makes it difficult for you to adopt yourself to your surroundings. You do not have many friends and you are satisfied with those you have. You enjoy the seclusion of your home and your happiest hours and most probably your most profitable come from the periods of meditation that you enjoy in the privacy of your home. While you are yourself a very sensitive person, you are very blunt and almost too direct in your dealings with others. Your brusqueness is really a defense mechanism, but it is often misunderstood and you thereby lose friends.

Make Task Of Cooking A Pleasure

BY ELSIE PIERCE

Here's the very first protest on the series of hints for the home-builder. Mrs. Jamieson (for publication) writes:

"Dear Miss Pierce: I've read every word of your lessons to home-builders and we certainly have a friend in you. I've often felt that we poor folks just aren't in the beauty race any more. No one seems to think of us. There's just one thing; why haven't you said anything about cooking as an enemy of the complexion. It's just that, hat high, high, fiery color that comes from hanging over a stove cooking and burning for three kiddies and a husband. You feel hot and exhausted. You look worse. What are we going to do about that?"

Mrs. Jamieson just beat me to it. For I intended writing on the very subject. It is a little difficult to do one's own cooking and still keep one's complexion, but it can be done. First, I would suggest that just before starting, you give yourself a short treatment. It will take only a few minutes. Cleanse the skin thoroughly. Then apply a very light film of cream, the not too greasy kind. Put it over face and neck and around eyes. This will keep the skin soft and smooth and protect it from any detrimental effect of cooking, or stove-burn or whatever you choose to call it. You know there's sunburn, windburn, the irritation that comes from huddling too close to open fire or radiator in the winter or standing over an active stove. You can actually turn a disadvantage into an advantage. The heat of the stove will open the pores, the cream do a better job of softening the skin and restoring the lost natural oil and there you are. Your dinner done, simply remove any remaining cream. Then pat gently with a pad of cotton that has been wrung out of clear cold water, passed over a bit of ice and moistened with skin tonic. If you can lie down for ten minutes and apply two such pads over your eyes, you'll feel fresh as a daisy. After the tonic treat (and it is just that) apply a little rose and smooth powder over face and neck generously, a little lip paste and you'll look just as lovely as Mrs. Millionaire who has never had the thrill of cooking her own dinner and having it come out just right!

I have a very complete bulletin which gives every step in the home facial, massage movements "and everything"—all for a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Address Miss Pierce care of the Appleton Post-Crescent.

NAMES AND SIGNATURES

Dear Mrs. Post: I am a business woman. My contact with customers is often a social one and whenever this question enters into the situation I don't know how to sign my name in writing letters to them. Do I use "Miss" in such cases or do I merely sign "Mary Jones" or "Mary?"

Answer: Put "Miss" in parentheses as "Miss Mary Jones. Or if you are sure that they know you are "Miss," sign your letter "Mary Jones."

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband is named for his paternal grandfather, John Smith. The grandfather died last year and my husband still signs his name John Smith, 2nd. Is this correct? We hope to have a son some day to carry on the name. Will his name be John Smith, 3rd?

Answer: Correctly your husband is now John Smith unless he has an uncle of the same name. And the baby will be John Smith, Jr. (Not second.)

My dear Mrs. Post: When addressing a communication to college authorities relative to securing a position on the faculty, to whom should I write? Should it be the registrar or the dean?

Answer: Neither. A registrar is written to with regard to entering classes. The dean has charge of the student body. I would suggest addressing such an application as yours to the president of the college, who has the power to recommend you for his educational staff when he meets with the board of governors of the college.

Dear Mrs. Post: When sending a note of congratulations on the birth of a baby, should it be addressed to the mother at the hospital, or to "Mr. and Mrs." and sent to the house?

Answer: Whichever you like. That is, if both are equally your friends, you might write to Mr. and Mrs., but usually you write to the mother.

Dear Mrs. Post: When a gift is sent to a bride after the wedding should it be addressed to Mrs. John Blank or to Mr. and Mrs. John Blank?

Answer: To "Mrs." (Copyright 1932.)

Church Changes Service Schedule

Marriage is Safeguard For Woman's Happiness

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—Do you think that in a couple of years marriage will be a thing of the past?

Answer: No. Nor in two centuries. Marriage is an imperfect institution, but it is the best arrangement that civilization has yet been able to evolve for a binding relationship between the sexes.

I suppose some of the boys have been discoursing to you about the beauty of free love and telling you that marriage is old-fashioned and outmoded, and that it is going into the discard, but don't be silly enough to believe them. Don't let them persuade you that love is the only tie that should bind a man and woman together, and that either one should be at liberty to leave when his or her fancy changes.

The men who preach that doctrine to you are those who are leaving the door open to make a get away, and they always walk out on the woman who has been dumb enough to fall for their sophistries.

Marriage is the only protection that women and children have, and the woman who weakens it by even a single silk thread is a traitor to her sex and brings disaster on her own head.

When a man really loves a woman and means to stick to her, he marries her honorably in the sight of all men. He gives her his name. He gives her a respectable position in society. He founds a home and family.

And the mere fact that he has done this makes the bond between them not only legally but spiritually binding upon them. Just because a woman is a man's wife gives her a certain superiority in his eyes. It is the same spirit that makes a man think he has the best automobile or the finest dog or the best boat in the world. No man ever sees his wife quite as she is. She always has a little halo about her because she is his wife.

For that reason a man will stick to his wife long after he would to a lady love to whom he was not married. Also, on the wife's side are all the organized forces of society and respectability, and many men endure marriages that are not particularly happy or congenial just because they do not want to go through all the mess of scandal and divorce. So the woman is safeguarded by marriage.

But far otherwise would it be if there were no marriage and if, when a man tired of a woman when she lost her youth and beauty and allure for him, all he had to do was to fade out of the picture. If marriage were done away with, no woman of 50 would have a mate.

Marriage is woman's graft, and they will never be fools enough to give it up. So you needn't worry over the Holy Estate being abolished inside of two years. It will far outlast your little lifetime.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a young widow with three little children. My husband was an ideal mate and I adored him and I have mourned him sincerely. But I am young. I am very lonely and I have a woman's desire for love and affection, and I have met a man who loves me and for whom I have begun to care. But it seems shameful to me that I could care for another man. And I feel that I should not remarry on account of my children but should devote my life to them. What do you think about it?

A READER.

Answer: I think you are taking a morbid view of the subject. Because you loved one good man is no reason why you should not love another and be happy with him after the first one has gone.

God, who makes the grass grow above a grave, who ordained that the day should follow the night, did not intend that the human heart should always ache with emptiness. He gave to it the power to fill itself again with new affections, new hope and happiness.

Otherwise the world would be drenched in tears and the black abode of sorrow. Time mercifully heals our wounds. Memory shrouds the ghosts that haunt us until the past fades into a dim, sweet retrospect and our present is filled with the living whose hands we can touch, whose kisses are warm on our lips, and who give point and meaning to our lives. And this is well. For no good is effected by spending our lives in unavailing grief for the dead.

Perhaps no second love is quite as romantic and passionate as a first love, for into that went all our dreams and youth, but a second love may be just as true and faithful and just as consoling a thing to us. Many men and women have been far happier in the quiet, ordered second love that they were in the tumultuous passion of their boyhood and girlhood, and it is no-

Lowman, head of Wisconsin physical education, intramural athletics and physical education teacher-training, who is in charge of the clinic, has enlisted, in addition to the members of his own department, Dr. Clarence W. Spears, Badger football coach; Dr. Walter E. Meanwell, coach of basketball at Wisconsin since 1911; and T. E. Jones, who has tutored every Badger track team since 1912. Each of these coaches will handle some phase of his own sport. Bill Fallon, Wisconsin's efficient trainer, will conduct a section in Conditioning and Training Athletics.

Dr. J. C. Elsom will present a paper, which will be accompanied by a demonstration on "Convulsive Exercises for the Prevention of and Post-Operative Treatment of Hernia." Professor Robert Nohr and A. Chaff 'n Chatter

By Gordon E. McIntyre

SPORTS writers have been given rather the worst of it recently by two former football stars—Barry Wood of Harvard and Gaius Shaver of the University of Southern California—who have taken pen in hand to point out injustices wreaked upon college players by the reporters.

Both players paint the sports writer as a person between the devil and the deep blue sea.

On the Spot: Wood, in his book, "What Price Football," pictures the sports reporter catering to the public taste, a taste developed largely by the dear old schools enterprising athletic association. He writes of the player's reaction to sports page feature stories as either disgust or swell-headedness.

And Shaver, in a story called "Football Ballyhoo" in a recent issue of Collier's, blames the sports writer for both criticizing and praising players. Shaver depicts your football warrior as "just a kid

Meanwell Hopes For Good Team

Little Doctor Says Squad Should Finish in First Division

MADISON — In this day of "bear stories" and "blues songs," it is rare to find an athletic coach who will state frankly what he thinks of his team's prospects in a given game or season. In Dr. Walter E. Meanwell, return basketball coach, however, Wisconsin has one of this rare species.

"If 'Doc' Meanwell thinks his Badgers are good, he will say so. If he says he has nothing and will finish in the rear of the procession no one who knows him will shout 'Sob stuff.' It is Coach Meanwell's custom, at the start of each basketball season, to state definitely what he thinks of his material and about where he figures the Badgers should finish. The records show that the little doctor has usually been able to hit pretty close to the final result, except in such a case as last season, when he lost six men through ineffectuality, at the start of the second semester, the list including Bobby Foser, the only outstanding player in the squad.

"If I am able to hold through the season, the men who now make up my squad, I think Wisconsin should finish in the first division," is Coach Meanwell's prediction for 1932-1933. "I have some big men this year who can handle themselves fairly well. Their basket shooting has been rather disappointing thus far, so I have had to spend a disproportionate amount of time on shooting technique, but that should improve. Many of the squad are sophomores, so the team will hardly be functioning as it should until about mid-season, but after that, if I do not lose any regulars, they ought to be good enough to give any of our opponents a battle. Under the conditions I have stated, I think we shall finish in the first division."

It is considered significant that Coach Meanwell is still carrying 25 men in his varsity squad, where ordinarily he limits the group to ten or a dozen players by this time in the season.

Watch Him Next Year: Iowa has a sophomore quarterback in George Teyro who promises to be a classy punter next year. In the recent game with Purdue the lad stood on his own goal line and punted to the Boiler-makers' 15-yard stripe. He consistently boots 'em 60 yards.

Traditional Games Attract Grid Faithful

Southern California Battles for Rose Bowl Privileges

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR. Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK—The pressing annual problem of how to combine the two leading Thanksgiving pastimes—eating a turkey dinner and watching a football game again faced the fans of the nation today and the indications were that football would win out in many quarters.

The schedule wasn't a long one but, backed by tradition and carrying the importance of championships, what games there were seemed certain to attract some of the season's largest crowds.

In the east, Brown and Colgate settled the football vs. turkey conflict by starting their game at 11 o'clock in the morning.

Both were outstanding among the nation's teams and the winner was sure to get some serious consideration in choosing the eastern team for the New Year's day game at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Cal.

Penn Vs. Cornell: Sharing interest with Brown and Colgate in the east were the historic Pennsylvania-Cornell rivalry and the younger but still interesting clash between New York University and Carnegie Tech.

Nebraska, favored to continue the record which brought it the Big Six championship held the center of the mid-western picture with its annual struggle with Missouri, while Detroit's Titans engaged in an inter-sectional struggle with Oregon.

Southern California, recognized national champion of 1931 and the probable western selection for the Rose-Bowl classic, squared off against Washington in the big game on the Pacific coast. The Trojans were expected to win. The University of California at Los Angeles offered an attractive one of only slightly less importance, facing Washington State.

In the South, where fewer Thanksgiving day games have been sidetracked for other dates than in other sections, a half dozen outstanding games lured the faithful away from the festive boards. Tennessee and Vanderbilt, two of the unbeaten teams in the southern conference and challengers of Auburn's title claims, swung into action against major foes. Tennessee's punters, faced Kentucky and Vandy met Alabama.

Centenary Undefeated: The Centenary gentlemen, a team from a "small" college which was big enough to remain in the ranks of the undefeated and untied, ventured into the southwest sector for a game with Arkansas, which ruined last year's record.

Another set of traditional rivalries brought Southern conference teams brought together. Virginia and North Carolina, North Carolina State and South Carolina and Virginia Military and Virginia Poly Tech.

Texas and Texas A. and M. led off the Southwest conference slate while Denver-Colorado topped the Rocky Mountain program.

Marquette-Drake Game to be Broadcast

MILWAUKEE—There was not much room for turkey in the lives of Marquette University football players today. Despite the holiday the squad went through its usual workout.

Strategies were completed for the game against Drake Saturday. There was scrimmage against Drake plays and the variety went through a signal review. Trost, tackle; Agostini, fullback and Kulka end, who had been out with injuries, have rejoined the squad.

The game against Drake will be broadcast, over radio station WTMJ.

Vinson Sahlin, brilliant University of Chicago quarterback, won recognition during his high school days in Chicago as one of the best young speed ice skaters in the mid-west.

"We accepted the prophecy of the sports writers that we would have a ridiculously easy time of it beating Washington State," writes Shaver. "We lost, 7 to 8."

Shaver points out that the players learned enough from that defeat to go on and beat Stanford, 41 to 12, and California, 70 to 0.

Chicago Elevens Try Twelve Man Teams

Chicago—There'll be no squawking from the coach if the Berwyn Legion Parrots get beat in their semi-pro football game against the Oak Park Rookies Sunday.

As a trial, 12 players will be used on each team, the extra player being in there to call signals and direct his team. Norman "Peewee" Scaman will be the extra man for the Parrots and he won't dare squawk afterwards.

He's the Parrot coach.

R. and S. Shoes Beat Truckers; Guards Defeated

Co. D. Beaten by Rechner Cleaners; Games are Played at "Y"

THREE Appleton basketball teams which eventually will compete in the Y. M. C. A. Industrial league showed last night at the association gymnasium.

The Co. D. team and the Rechner Cleaners battled in the first game of the evening with the Cleaners copping in a second half rally, 30 and 21. In the "big" game of the evening the R. and S. Shoes won from the General Truckers of Oshkosh, 28 and 13.

The Shoes put up a rather sleepy exhibition in the first half of the contest and their usually high scoring offense failed to get started. The count at the end of the half was 13 and 5 in favor of the invaders.

During the second half things changed and the Appleton team pounded out 18 points while the Truckers were scoring four and the game ended with the Shoes in front 23 and 17. McCanna was high scorer for the Shoes with five buckets.

In the Guard-Cleaner game there was little scoring in the opening half and the Guards led by a 13 and 10 score. The basket was easier to hit in the second half, however, especially for the Cleaners who registered 20 points while the Guards got eight. Gainer was high score for the Guards with four buckets and two free throws. Klippstein had four buckets and no gift shots.

For the Cleaners R. Versteegen showed four buckets for high score. The box scores:

CARD STAR IN HOSPITAL

The St. Louis Cardinals are faced with losing their star, shortstop, Charley Gelbert, as the result of a hunting accident. Gelbert is in a Philadelphia hospital undergoing an operation to save his leg. The leg was injured when Gelbert, hunting near Chambersburg, Pa., tripped on a vine and fell. The jar discharged his gun and the shot entered his left leg. Nerves were shattered by the lead pellets. Mrs. Gelbert is shown at his bedside.

Young Jack Gibbons Makes His Ring Debut

S. T. PAUL—Once more a young man will climb through the ropes of the squared circle tomorrow night, stripped for battle and carrying on his young shoulders, the answer to a father's hope.

He's no more than a kid—only 20—but the mob won't think of that when young Jack Gibbons starts throwing leather in his first professional bout, a four rounder against Al Paul of St. Paul.

They'll wonder and watch hopefully for a sign that would indicate if the old adage "like father, like son" holds good. Will he show the makings of another Mike the phantom, whose son he is, or will he prove to be just another fighter? Cagy Mike Gibbons, one of the greatest boxers of his time, will be watching too, for, during a fanning bout not so long ago, the old phantom remarked, "I'd like to see my boy show the qualifications necessary to make fighting his business. I have no objection to him entering boxing as a profession if he shows the necessary qualifications. I see no reason why he shouldn't take it up."

If Mike didn't think young Jack had something it's hardly probable that the kid would be going in there. But it will be a test of his ability and, if during the next year the boy fails to show that which ultimately will carry him to the first rank, it's a certainty he'll hang up his gloves.

Mike, the dad who reared him, taught him, boxed him, and spanked him will be in his corner when the bell rings. His dad had given up the spanking some time ago but it was only within the last two weeks that he quit sparring with his son. Although not old, the phantom has slowed up considerably and, by his own admission, "the kid is a pretty good hitter." He has a

Hunk Is Pessimistic About Game With Army

South Bend, Ind.—(P) Notre Dame's football Ramblers rambled toward New York for the Army engagement today with every sign of a hospital except a Red Cross nurse.

Five players, including George Melinkovich, were suffering from mild attacks of influenza, and Coach Hunk Anderson was pessimistic for the first time in his coaching life.

"We'll do well to hold the army to three touchdowns Saturday," he moaned. "Maybe some of our sick boys will get in the game for a while but even if they do, it looks like a bad day for us. The Army has a great team and it's always greater when we come along."

Melinkovich, the best ground gainer on the team this season, worried Coach Anderson more than the other sick players, Jim Harris, Dominic Vairo, Emmett Murphy and Ray Boland. The big fullback, one of the most dangerous open field runners in the game, failed to show any signs of rapid recovery although he insisted that he would be ready.

N. Y. U. and Carnegie In Annual Struggle

New York—(P)—New York University and Carnegie Tech, just a couple of good football teams which were very much interested in winning the season's last game, clashed today in the seventh game of a series which began in 1926.

Neither team was strongly favored. Carnegie looked quite impressive in holding the great Pitt Panthers to a 6-0 score last Saturday but there was some suspicion that the struggle might have taken a lot of pep out of them. The Violets had a ten day rest but were shy, their star end, Joe Hugert, who was laid up with a knee injury.

"good style" and a "very good prospect."

His father says young Jack has a pretty fair left. He showed indications of it in his first public appearance in the ring when he won the middleweight championship in the Minneapolis golden gloves tournament last year. He has boxed assiduously since and he is a leading handball player of the Twin-Cities.

"In all modesty," said Mike, "he is far above the average and has a lot of natural ability. He is a wonderful athlete." Like his father, Jack-Gibbons' uncle, Tommy, was among the leading fighters in his division, heavyweight. He too has retired, but another Gibbons is coming up—young Jack, and if he carries a high niche for himself in the future it will be one of the few times, if not the only time, the son of a great boxer attained greatness in his own right.

For two successive seasons an amateur cricket league has played a regular schedule in St. Louis.

Sheep Business Turning Corner

Stocks of Mutton on Hand And Moving to Market Smaller, Report

There are those who are beginning to believe that the sheep business has turned the corner. Stocks of mutton on hand are smaller and the number of lambs moving to market is smaller than a year ago, reports indicate, according to Gustav A. Sell, county agent.

Perhaps no time is more important to Outagamie farmers who will raise sheep in 1933 than the period between November and March, for the care and management given the flock during that period determines largely what the 1933 lamb crop will be.

James J. Lacey, of the Wisconsin college of agriculture, in addressing Badger farmers over radio station WHA recently, called attention to several points in a management program which when combined help produce a good lamb crop.

Thriftiness, sufficiently well fed to make a rather rapid gain in weight, he mentioned as one of the first important steps in the program. As a good ration for the winter, months, he suggested alfalfa hay, a few roots, and some grain.

In winter, if there is no snow to interfere, many flock owners allow their flocks to range in fields, meadows and pastures until near Christmas time. This provides exercise and the flock is less subject to colds when it can roam out of doors in good weather.

For a winter of shelter, Lacey finds that one of the most popular and most successful types of sheep barn is the board structure with a single siding, a good roof, and plenty of floor space, with openings to the south or east.

Localized salt in place of ordinary salt is suggested as a preventive against goitre. Although more expensive it is regarded by many as being the cheapest source of iodine for disease control.

Speaker Hits State's High Utility Rates

Claims Monopolistic Control Is Responsible; Urges Local Ownership

(Special to Post-Crescent)
Chilton—At the regular meeting of the Chilton Kiwanis club Tuesday evening L. P. Fox gave a talk on public utilities in Wisconsin. Mr. Fox stated that the indeterminate franchise granted by the state to power companies has not worked out to the economic welfare of the consumer of electric power. Under this arrangement the power companies have grown to be monopolies and the commission in Madison, in charge of public utilities, uniformly sustains all stands taken by the power companies. He maintained that the public is paying exorbitant prices for electric power, this being a great misfortune, because under the conditions of modern life electric power is an absolute necessity. "Being an absolute necessity it should not fall under the monopolistic control of any public service corporation," he said.

Not only have the rates charged by public utilities been exorbitant, but many of the power companies have highly inflated their stock values, and then sold them to the unsuspecting public, who bought them in good faith, said Mr. Fox. He further declared that he believed that the remedy for this condition lay in authorizing municipalities to operate their own plants so that they might compete with these plants under this monopolistic control. The speaker further declared that this situation could be relieved by proper legislation but the task of improvement would not be a light one, because the power companies are thoroughly organized and have most powerful lobbies in the country at state and national capitals. The disadvantage under which the consumer of electric power is today placed can only be remedied by a united front of the consumers of electricity against the entrenched, organized power now standing back of the power companies.

SOME WRITERS insist that the turkey got its name from the resemblance of the bird's curious head adornments to the fez, a head-piece worn by Turkish citizens. Wild turkeys were plentiful in colonial days, and even at the beginning of the 18th century they could be bought for 6 cents each in Massachusetts. When Cortez visited Mexico he found great droves of turkeys kept as a food supply for the eagles and vultures of the royal aviaries.

Kaukauna Hunter Gets Deer in Few Minutes

Kaukauna—John Haid, policeman, is being hailed as the best hunter in the vicinity of Ashland. Haid was in the woods near Agnew, several miles from Ashland, for about 20 minutes Monday morning when he bagged a four point buck weighing more than 150 pounds. The feat was considered more remarkable because of the cold weather which has been reported driving the deer deep into the wooded country. Haid was hunting with Dr. D. M. Gallaher of Appleton and Frank Bossell of Ashland.

Students Enjoying Two-Day Vacation

Kaukauna—Students in both public and parochial schools are enjoying a two-day vacation because of Thanksgiving Day today. Classes will be resumed in all of the schools next Monday morning.

But when it comes to cleaners, she has learned this from millions of women in simple homes—that the finest cleaner that money can buy is also the most economical to own. That cleaner is The Hoover—which any woman can have for as little as $4.50 down.

• Our bonded Hoover representative will show you the selection.
